County Scrap Collection 110 Tons After 4 Days

Report Made by Marion Yards; Rural Schools' Campaign Continues Progress with Collection Started; Cleanup Set for Next Week.

The start of the fifth day of Marion's countywide scrap metal drive brought reports of progress from every quarter.

Yesterday's collections at Marion yards amounted to 24 tons, boosting the yield in four days to 110 tons.

Rural schools reported they are in the final stages of their canvassing and "spotting" campaign and added they are pleased by the promises of donations that have come in.

The city schools announced their plans for a concentrated two-day campaign next week, with intensive canvassing set for Tuesday and a citywide pickup Wednesday. Details of their plans appear elsewhere in today's Star.

Hauling plans took shape rapidly, with both Clyde Porterfield of the state highway department and County Engineer Walter Johnson pledging help, along with a number of business and industrial firms.

Rural schools laid plans carefully for sending crews of schoolboy workers out into farm fields beginning Monday to assemble scrap in piles and get it ready for pickup trucks.

Among big single gifts reported today was an unestimated amount of scrap at Crystal Lake and a one-ton donation made by a Marion store. Rural schools also cited some large individual gifts.

At Meeker, the scrap pile passed the six and one-half ton mark.

LaRue reported a dinner bell and an old motor helped swell its collection, and that the response to questionnaires was encouraging.

Campbell one-room school in Marion township, with the help of two adults, turned in three and one-half tons the first day.

Prospect reported two tons already on its schoolyard pile and much more promised.

Pleasant planned a communitywide scrap rally Monday noon for both students and parents, and asked everyone to bring some scrap along to the party.

MARION SCHOOL DRIVE PLANNED

Complete Schedule Announced for City and St. Mary Pupils.

Marion city schools and St. Mary parochial school today completed plans for a thorough canvass of the city in the nationwide scrap metal campaign.

The drive is already under way so far as canvassing is concerned. The big day will be next Wednesday when trucks will start covering the city to bring in everything too heavy for pupils to move to schoolyard junk piles.

Supt. E. E. Holt, through the principals, is asking all elementary students to get small scrap to their respective schools by wagon. In cases where larger pieces such as broken furnace bowls or hot water tanks are given to the schools, students will be asked to take the name and address of the donor and report to the principal.

An effort will be made to get all heavy pieces out to the curb line by Wednesday morning before the trucks start around. If you want to simplify the task of the students and reduce their work to a minimum, have your junk piled at the curb by Wednesday morning.

Organization Set-up

While elementary schools, with any help they need from the junior high schools, are working in the residential districts, high school students will center their attention on the business district. Although some work will be done on the business district canvass ahead of time, present plans are to release enough high school students from classes Tuesday morning to make a thorough checkup on the business district. Complete arrangements for picking up the metal will be made during this canvass.

The high school also will stand ready to tackle any difficult jobs in the residential district that are beyond the capabilities of younger students. If some big piece of scrap has to be dismantled or broken up before it can be moved, the owner may arrange to have this work done by calling Harding High school.

Children in grades three to six will be excused from school at recess on Tuesday morning to make a final solicitation and cover every home in the district not previously contacted.

Schedule of Operation

Students will work on the following plan:

Each elementary principal will be free to call upon the junior high schools for as much help as the principal feels may be required in collecting the scrap.

Children in grades three to six will be excused from school at recess Tuesday morning to make final solicitation of material in order to cover every home in the school district.

Wednesday morning, children in grades one and two will be urged to get to school whatever scrap they are able to bring. Children in grades three to six will be advised to start the morning by collecting and bringing to school the scrap which has been solicited previous to that time. Children in these grades are not to be counted absent or tardy because of time spent on this work.

Regular classes will be held only in grades one and two.

The principal of each building will determine the procedure to

6 1-2 Tons Piled Up at Meeker

More than six and a half tons of scrap had been collected up to noon today at the Meeker school, Supt. Paul Shirck reported.

Last night and this morning the contributions totaled 5,921 pounds, bringing the total since the opening of the drive to 13,680 pounds.

The Mattix family had so much scrap to contribute that a truck was used to haul it to the school.

A foot warmer of horse-and-buggy-days vintage and a horn off an old graphophone were among the hundreds of items sent in by residents of the community.

William Roszman, custodian for the last five years has volunteered to help the students by weighing the scrap as it is brought in. One of the contributions yesterday came from A. Parish, grandfather of several pupils. He brought their collections to the school in his auto-drawn trailer.

Big Donation from Crystal Lake

Heading the list of big, individual scrap donations reported today was a boiler, considerable yardage of woven fence, heavy cable and other miscellaneous scrap at Cryystal Lake, an abandoned quarry now filled with water. C. E. Merkel of 325 Mt. Vernon avenue arranged with O. P. H. Snyder, principal of Harding High school, to remove the scrap, a job that will involve use of the facilities of the Harding vocational shop.

There are some railroad rails under water at the lake, and if possible the students will try to get them, too, although chilly weather may prevent any extensive underwater work.

Another large gift came from the Kresge 25c-$1 store where approximately a ton of pipe and other metal pieces is available on the second floor.

Arrangements are already under way to take care of both donations.

Aimed at Schickelgruber

DAVID FLACH AND BOMB

Marion Boy Turns in 50-Pound Bomb Shell and He Wants It To Hit Hitler.

David Flach, 9, of 613 Cleveland avenue isn't old enough to shoulder a gun to fight for Uncle Sam, but he is doing his bit toward helping others get the arms and ammunition they need by taking an active part in the scrap drive.

A fourth grade pupil at the Pearl street school, David decided to see what he could do after he heard his teacher tell how the school children of Marion were helping in the scrap drive sponsored on a nationwide scale by the country's newspapers.

David knew where he could find a sizeable chunk of metal. His contribution was a 50-pound aerial bomb left over from World War I. When he arrived home from school he informed his mother, Mrs. Elmer J. Flach, that the bomb, which had been a Flach war souvenir for more than 20 years, was going to the Pearl Street school scrap pile.

Feeling that the bomb was no ordinary contribution David called The Star office to tell about his scrap drive efforts. When a photographer called at his home later he posed beside the bomb and remarked, "If they make anything out of this bomb I hope it falls on Adolf Schickelberger (he meant Schickelgruber) Hitler."

The bomb was given to Mr. and Mrs. Flach shortly after World War I by a friend who worked in a Detroit factory where the explosives were manufactured.

Program for Presentation Of Steam Shovel 'M' Announced

Lt. Gov. Herbert To Speak in Bricker's Place Monday Afternoon.

Program for the Monday afternoon ceremony at the Marion Steam Shovel Co., when the maritime commission's "M" pennant and victory fleet flag will be presented, was virtually complete today but met a last-minute obstacle when illness of Gov. John W. Bricker made it necessary for him to cancel his scheduled appearance as the principal speaker.

Company officials said arrangements are being made for Lieut. Gov. Paul M. Herbert to speak in his place.

Governor Bricker, under treatment for influenza, also cancelled an appearance at Middletown Monday when he was to participate in an army-navy "E" award presentation ceremony at the American Rolling Mills Co. The Associated Press reported from Columbus.

Dr. Russell G. Means, the governor's physician, advised against making the trips. The governor remained in bed today for the second day.

The Monday night radio talk, scheduled to be given at Dayton, will be broadcast from Columbus.

The ceremony at 1:30 p. m. in the rear of the plant, old Davids and Columbia streets, will mark the Shovel Co. as the third Ohio company to receive the maritime

FINAL ACTION SOUGHT TODAY ON PRICE BILL

Congress Leaders Hope To Send Measure to White House Tonight.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2—Senate and house conferees struggled to compose today an acceptable set of directives for President Roosevelt's price and wage fixing regulations against inflation, so that a finally-passed bill could be sent to the White House tonight.

They worked under the impetus of a reproof from the President, who pointed out on his return from a cross country trip last night that during the economic crisis of 1933 it was the normal thing for congress to pass needed legislation in 24 hours or in a couple of days.

Urged Quick Action

In his Labor day message of Sept. 7, Mr. Roosevelt demanded the legislation by Oct. 1, declaring he would act if congress didn't.

Contrasted with the purely domestic crisis of 1933, the President told his press conference, today's situation threatened the very existence of the nation and it was important to have speed.

Before the laboring lawmakers was the senate substitute for a house bill, with altered provisions for farm price controls and other changes.

With house farm leaders apparently ready to accept the senate provision that "adequate weighting" be given to the cost of farm labor in the establishment of price ceilings, the chief point of difference was a proposal to place a floor of 90 per cent of parity under farm prices.

Loans Provided

Both the house and senate bills provide for loans on the major farm commodities at 90 per cent of parity, instead of the present 85 per cent.

Senator Brown (D-Mich.) said he could "safely say that the bill as it passed the senate will be acceptable in substance by those in charge of the measure in the house." This statement followed an informal conference yesterday, in which senate Democratic Leader Barkley of Kentucky said considerable progress toward an agreement was made.

"SHARE-RIDE" PLAN IS PROPOSED HERE

Meeting Called To Prepare for Gas Ration Era.

In preparation for pending rationing of gasoline, Mayor Russell C. Snare has called a meeting Monday night to discuss plans for a "share-your-ride" program that will ease the city into the rationing program with as little disruption of schedules as possible.

Announcements of the meeting, which will be at 8 in the Chamber of Commerce office, have gone out to representatives of the industries, retail stores, Catholic and Protestant churches, women's organizations, the CIO and AFL labor organizations, schools and the Marion Automobile club.

The meeting Monday night will be to discuss the city's problems. There will be a later meeting at which the entire county, the [illegible]

TOUR CHEERING TO PRESIDENT

So Pleased with 8,754 Mile War Plant Trip He May Make Another.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2 — President Roosevelt's inspection of bustling war establishments around the edge of the nation worked out so well that he was giving earnest consideration today to another tour or two through the central and southeastern sections of the country.

He missed those areas while traveling 8,754 miles through 24 states in the last fortnight, paying surprise visits to private war plants and teeming army, navy and marine bases. But he had hopes of visiting them next spring to find out at first hand what they are contributing to the war effort.

He voiced that hope late yesterday, at a press conference at which he released details of his swing around America and gave his impressions of what he had seen.

The trip was conducted with all possible secrecy. Not a line was to be published about it until Mr. Roosevelt had returned safely to Washington.

SOVIETS STAND BEFORE ENEMY WITH BAYONETS

Foe Driven from Many Houses; Germans Claim Another Suburb Captured.

By The Associated Press

Russian shock troops, attacking with gun butts and bayonets, were reported driving the Germans from house after house amid the nightmare wreckage of Stalingrad today, and once again it appeared that the astonishing Soviets had warded off disaster.

It was the 39th day of siege.

A bulletin from Nazi field headquarters said German troops captured suburban Orlovka, in the northwest section of Stalingrad, and claimed the encirclement of a major Soviet force to the west of this center.

Soviet dispatches declared the Germans gained only 200 or 300 yards in the northwest suburbs, losing nearly a thousand dead.

The Nazi high command said new Russian assaults against the German barrier north of the city had been repulsed with a loss yesterday of 121 Soviet tanks.

Rallying to Premier Stalin's call to "stand firm," the Red armies were pictured in official dispatches as stemming the Nazi assault in the heart of the city and scoring gains on both flanks of the beleaguered Volga metropolis.

Fresh Nazi Troops

Fresh German divisions brought from other points were reported rushing into the struggle, but the Russians said a decisive turn had not yet been reached.

Soviet accounts said the battle now raged in four main zones: inner city, southwest, northwest suburbs, and along a 40-mile northwest corridor between the Don and Volga rivers.

By sectors, these were the major developments as related by Red army headquarters in a midday communique:

Inner City—Soviet troops beat off a large-scale German attack and the invaders were "thrown back to their initial positions" with 200 killed and 10 tanks wrecked.

Southwest—Russian troops beating off the lower claw of the German pincer captured another village; the fourth in 48 hours, and killed 40 Germans.

Northwest Suburbs—Huge Nazi forces of tanks, armored cars, infantry, automatic riflemen and dive bombers struck again and again in an attempt to deepen a wedge cut into the city's upper suburbs.

"Five attacks were repelled by the Soviet troops and only after the sixth attack did the Germans succeed in advancing a little," The Soviet command said. Dispatches to the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia said this furious assault gained the Germans only 200 to 300 yards.

Northwest Corridor — Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's armies attacking the German left flank dislodged the invaders from another strategic height, destroyed 18 dugouts and blockhouses, and killed 300 Nazis. Soviet press dispatches said the Germans were forced to abandon "several" hill and ravines. Izvestia said 2,000 Germans had been killed at one point.

Heavy German casualties were also reported in fighting around Mendek, in the central Caucasus; below Novorossisk, on the Black sea coast; and near Leningrad. A Red army communique said the Russians wiped out 1,500 Germans and Rumanian troops in a [illegible] battle southeast of Novorzhev.

GAS RATIONING CUTS OHIO LABOR SUPPLY

Some Workers Leave State; Situation Not Acute.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 2 — The announcement of nationwide gasoline rationing cost Ohio some of its migratory farm laborers but no acute shortage of beet workers or fruit and vegetable pickers is expected, the U. S. employment service reported today.

Wade Hammond, service director, said more migratory tomato and sugar beet workers returned south after the government announced rationing would become effective throughout the country Nov. 22.

The peak of the tomato harvest has passed, he added, no critical shortage of beet labor is expected and only 1,500 workers in addition to those already available will be needed to harvest apples, corn, grapes and potatoes.

The service plans to supplement regular labor with housewives and high school students who volunteer to help harvest fruits and vegetables.

Hammond estimated that more than half the total demand will be for workers to pick winter varities of apples.

"To forestall any loss due to labor shortage, growers are being urged to place their orders for workers with the nerest USES office far enough in advance to permit orderly recruitment," Hammond declared.

The service is tapping WPA rolls and other sources to meet a possible shortage of about 400 men for the central-southwestern Ohio corn harvest.

Survey Shows Car Owners Favor Gasoline Rationing

By GEORGE GALLUP

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 2—The extraordinary effect which the Baruch committee report had on public opinion is revealed in a study just completed by the Institute.

Before the Committee reported in mid-September on the gravity of the rubber situation, only about half (49 per cent) of the nation's car owners thought nation-wide gasoline rationing was necessary to save tires. Today, following the Baruch report, the number in favor of nation-wide rationing is 73 per cent.

The change illustrates again a fact often shown since the war. The majority of Americans are willing to accept almost any sacrifice for war provided a full explanation of the necessity for such sacrifice is given by a non-partisan agency interested only in finding the facts.

However, the government faces one problem in its program to ration gasoline from coast to coast. There is substantially less acceptance of the idea in areas near oil producing centers than in the states where gasoline rationing was in force all summer and fall.

The need for a more intensive publicity campaign in the hitherto unrationed areas would seem to be indicated.

The reaction before and after the Baruch report is shown in the following comparison of Institute survey results among car owners.

| | August (Before Baruch Report) | Today |
|---|---|---|
| Favor Nation-wide Gasoline Rationing | 49% | 73% |
| Opposed | 44 | 22 |
| Undecided | 7 | 5 |

The attitude of non-car owners is virtually the same as that of car owners, the poll finds.

The substantial difference in attitude between the rationed and the non-rationer areas is revealed in the following table. It will be noted that three times as many car owners in the areas now unrationed oppose the program as in the areas which have rationing at present.

| | Rationed Areas | Non-Rationed Areas |
|---|---|---|
| Favor Nation-wide Gasoline Rationing | 89% | 66% |
| Opposed | 8 | 28 |
| Undecided | 3 | 6 |

The seriousnes of the rubber situation is emphasized by those voters who favor nation-wide rationing.

As a banker interviewed in Sheboygan, Wis., put it: "Something needs to be done, and people don't seem to do it without regulation."

FERGUSON APPEAL DENIED BY COURT

Holds Auditor Personally Liable in Suit.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 2—An appeals court ruling holds Ohio public officials personally responsible for damages resulting from "acts of misconduct in office."

The court, in returning yesterday probably the first such decision in the state, upheld the right of Leon K. Rowley of Columbus to sue Joseph T. Ferguson as an individual instead of in his capacity as state auditor for back pay after his discharge as an assistant examiner.

Rowley contended that he was under civil service and Ferguson had no right to dismiss him Feb. 1, 1937. The appeals court ordered Rowley reinstated July 7, 1939.

The examiner then sued for wages lost while he was not on the state payroll and a common pleas jury awarded him $4,935. Ferguson appealed, contending he could not be sued as an individual.

The appellate court affirmed the form of Rowley's action, ruling that Ferguson could be sued personally because he acted outside his jurisdiction and authority in discharging Rowley.

The tribunal, however, ordered a new trial in the lower courts on the grounds that the common pleas judge erred in admitting certain exhibits and in his special instructions to the jury.

HOW YOU SHOULD SAVE THEM

Save all your waste fats after you've got the good from them. Bacon grease, drippings, vegetable shortening—everything. For fats make glycerine. And glycerine makes explosives for the U.S. and our allies. Strain the fats through a sieve into a clean, wide-mouthed can. Please don't use paper or glass.

Take to your meat man after you've saved a pound or more. He will pay you the established price for waste fats and get them started on their way to the war factories. Your meat dealer is doing this as a public service. And you can help him greatly by delivering your fats and greases early in the week.

President Sees Plane and Tank Plants on Tour

K. T. Keller, president of the Chrysler corporation, uses a book to explain tank construction to President Roosevelt during the latter's tour of war production plants. Mrs. Roosevelt is at left and Donald Nelson behind Mr. Keller. (Official U. S. Navy photo from Associated Press).

Roosevelt Considers Another Tour

goals would be set higher than they were last January.

At that time he called for 60,000 planes in 1942 and 125,000 in 1943, 45,000 tanks this year and 85,000 next, 20,000 anti-aircraft guns in 1942 and 35,000 next June, 8,000,000 tons of shipping this year and 10,000,000 in 1942. The shipping totals later were boosted.

Mr. Roosevelt said he found the finest kind of morale among the people—a willingness to sacrifice and to accept any necessary war measures. He described the spirit of the country as a whole as very much alive—except in the nation's capital.

Contending that the war spirit here was far less than in the rest of America, the President spread the blame for this among portions of congress, the press and radio, and administration officials.

Seeking to justify their service to the war effort, he said, numerous legislators pry into matters better left to military experts who know more about them. History shows, he remarked somewhat resignedly, that congressmen have been doing this since the Revolutionary war.

Accuses Minority

He accused a minority of the press and radio, chiefly commentators and columnists, of disseminating reports not based on fact and telling the people things that don't exist. This minority, he said, seems to be unfamiliar with the country, just as are some congressmen.

Mr. Roosevelt declined to mention any names.

As for government officials, he said some fifth rate executives or publicity seekers, whose points of view are not rounded out, make picturesque speeches or act out of a belief that their specialties are not receiving due emphasis. He recommended that they button their lips.

The kind of spirit needed in Washington, he said, was that which he learned about in some of the agricultural areas. As he traveled along, he said, he had heard how the local bankers, druggists, newspaper editors and children were going out into the fields and getting in the crops to help farmers unable to obtain labor.

In the war factories themselves he noted what he termed amazing numbers of women workers plying skilled trades. Plant managers informed him, he said, that in another year probably half the workers would be women.

No Politics

Turning at one point to persons who had predicted his trip around the country would be of a political nature, the President said he was sorry to have to shock the readers of certain writers. But, he said, the only people remotely connected with politics whom he saw on the tour—and he said he did not talk politics with them—were 11 governors. He explained that he had not seen a single Democratic national committeeman or state chairman.

G. O. P. Critical

Some Republican members of congress immediately criticized the secrecy restrictions asked of the newspapers and radio, while Democrats said the voluntary censorship to protect the President was justified.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio) said he thought it a fine thing for the President to inspect domestic conditions at first hand "but I do not understand the reason for keeping it secret so long. I don't see any reason for announcing it in advance, but I see no reason why, the day after he had been at a place, the newspapers could not publish that he had been there."

Rep. Halleck (R-Ind) said it seemed strange to him that "alleged inspection trips" by the President always seemed to come just before elections, and said the news about it had been suppressed to a degree "neither necessary nor desirable."

Rep. Ramspeck (D-Ga) said he thought it unfortunate "that the commander in chief can't make a trip over the country without the Republicans making political capital of it," and Rep. Eberharter (D-Pa) said he thought "the voluntary censorship requested in this case was completely justified" to keep information from any potential saboteur.

All of the stories about the trip prepared by three traveling reporters, representing The Associated Press, the United Press and the International News Service were read by Mr. Roosevelt on the special train, and held for release here. He made no deletions, but added some touches by pointing out, for example, that one division he reviewed was one that he first knew in France in World war days.

The President left Washington on Sept. 17 and covered an average of 600 miles daily. Heading northwestward, he visited in turn the Chrysler tank arsenal and Ford Willow run bomber plant at Detroit, the Great Lakes Naval Training station near Chicago, an Allis-Chalmers plant which makes various war equipment at Milwaukee, and a Federal Cartridge Co. factory at New Brighton, Minn.

Mr. Roosevelt stopped in at Farragut naval training station at Athol, Idaho, and at Fort Lewis, the Bremerton navy yard, an army embarkation port and the Boeing flying fortress plant in the Puget Sound area.

He inspected a reduction plant of the Aluminum Co. of America at Vancouver, watched launching of a 10,500-ton Liberty freighter 10 days after the keel was laid at the yards of Henry J. Kaiser's Oregon shipbuilding corporation in Portland, and looked in on a naval hospital, naval training center, marine base and Consolidated Aircraft bomber plant at San Diego.

Turning back eastward, Mr. Roosevelt made his first stop at Uvalde, Tex., and John N. Garner, the former vice president, came down to the train. The two exchanged uproarious greetings at their first reunion since they parted political company over the third term issue.

The nation's principal pilot training center, at San Antonio, drew a presidential visit. Mr. Roosevelt viewed air corps activities at Kelly, Duncan and Randolph fields and at an aviation cadet center, and he reviewed the 2nd Infantry division, which he had known in World war days, at Fort Sam Houston.

The inspections ended with calls at another Consolidated bomber plant at Fort Worth, a Higgins industries boat yard at New Orleans, and at Camp Shelby, near Hattiesburg, Miss., and Fort Jackson, outside Columbia, S. C.

Workers Surprised

It seemed to amuse the President to appear suddenly among the machines and workers in a war factory and find men and women gaping at him in astonishment. Most of them obviously had not been tipped off that the President of the United States was going to turn up among them in an open car.

The reasons for the secrecy became apparent with the disclosure that Mr. Roosevelt had entered an actual military zone. That was in the far west, where he frequently was in sight of the sea.

Japanese shells have dropped along that coast. But nothing happened to jeopardize the President on the entire circuit of the country.

When he wasn't inspecting, he was visiting members of his family at brief pauses at Seattle, Coronado, Calif., and Fort Worth, or he was sitting in his private car aboard his special train working on official documents or waving at every section hand or farmer he glimpsed along the right of way.

People waved back without ever knowing who was greeting them.

At some spots along the way, the President saw evidence of a deadly seriousness of the war. He observed row after row of air raid shelters, camouflaged fields and buildings, smudge pots ready to erupt smoke screens, canopies of barrage balloons, some of them obtained from Britain under lend-lease arrangements, and nests of machine guns and anti-aircraft weapons.

Visited Hospitals

At naval hospitals Mr. Roosevelt met men wounded in all the major battles of the Pacific. At Bremerton navy yard he saw wounds being healed on fighting vessels damaged at Pearl Harbor. At Mare Island navy yard he saw an American submarine with nine significant Japanese naval flags painted on her conning tower, symbols of that many victims, as well as a two-man Jap sub which failed in its mission at Pearl Harbor.

There were only two speeches, both short and extemporaneous. At Bremerton the Chief Executive spoke of "wounded ships [illegible] wounded men" that were [illegible] brought back. At the shipyards in Portland he told [illegible] cheering workers he was sure Americans could have [illegible] the launching of a ship, [illegible] and realized what it [illegible] winning of the war.

Their stories, read by Mr. Roosevelt on the train, were withheld until the presidential special returned to Washington. There had been no suppression of news, only delayed publication, the President said; and he offered his thanks to press, radio and photographers for helping to keep his trip secret.

Byron Price, director of censorship, commented:

"No mandate or compulsion in law caused the publishers and broadcasters to keep this secret. They were guided purely by their own patriotism and caution in abnormal times. • • •

"The American press and broadcasters have never before made such a sacrifice of regular operations. Their act provides striking proof of the workability of voluntary censorship which must rest on the patriotism of press and broadcasting agencies."

Garner Drives Into Town To Greet His Former Boss

Cactus Jack Greets President at Uvalde for First Time Since Split on Third Term Issue.

The following news stories, written by an Associated Press correspondent who accompanied President Roosevelt on his homeside tour, now have been released for publication following the President's return to Washington.

UVALDE, Texas, Sept. 27—(Delayed)—President Roosevelt and John N. Garner, whose political trails ran parallel for eight years and then swerved widely apart, met today for the first time since the third term began and chatted boisterously for six minutes.

"Well what do you know?" Mr. Roosevelt exclaimed stretching out his hand. "Gosh, you look well."

"God bless you, I'm glad to see you," the former vice president declared.

Mr. Roosevelt, on a war inspection trip around the country, paused through this village of 700, which is Garner's home town, and went on to inspect army posts and fields at San Antonio.

Garner drove down to the station to meet the President's special in a 1929 Chevrolet.

There never was an outright break between the Chief Executive and the ruddy Texan who served under him for two full terms. Garner never denounced a third term publicly, although his opposition to one was readily apparent in Washington.

Then, when the time came for a running mate for Mr. Roosevelt to be named a third time, Henry A. Wallace was the President's choice. Garner retired to his ranch and business interests.

There was no evidence he felt any regrets as he and the Chief Executives exchanged pleasantries and touched for a moment on war and on domestic problems.

"Cactus Jack" ventured an opinion that the people around here were joining in the war effort more enthusiastically than those in Washington.

Chrysler Tank Gives President Anxious Time

DETROIT, Sept. 18—(Delayed)—President Roosevelt began a tour of America's clanging war plants and bustling military encampments here today with a look at the Chrysler tank arsenal, where a 32-ton mass of mechanized metal churned through a watery morass and crunched to a stop not ten feet from him.

From the tank factory, now turning out more than half of the medium tanks made in this country, the President moved over to the Ford Motor company's vast Willow Run bomber plant. There he chatted with a pair of midget workmen and saw sheet aluminum going into one end of quarter-mile long assembly lines and four-motored B-24 bombers ready to fly away at the other.

It was an uneasy moment for members of his party, and Mr. Roosevelt's eyes bulged a bit, too, when it appeared for an instant at the Chrysler arsenal that a maneuvering tank could not possibly be stopped short of the open car in which the Chief Executive sat.

When it finally came to a standstill, it sent a ripple of muddy water frothing across the road, and the Chief Executive tilted back his head, laughed, and exclaimed:

"A good driver, a good driver!"

President Sees Kaiser Speed Ship Building

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 23—(Delayed)—President Roosevelt saw for himself today how Henry J. Kaiser, a wizard of the shipways, turns metal into merchant vessels faster than anyone ever has done it before.

Before the eyes of the Chief Executive, a 10,800-ton liberty freighter, the Joseph N. Teal, was launched just 10 days after her keel was laid. Never in shipbuilding history had such speed been achieved.

The Chief Executive had heard of Kaiser's revolutionary shipconstruction methods, and he obviously was impressed at seeing the results glide down the ways into the Willamette river. He let the employes of the Oregon Shipbuilding Corp. here know it.

But he did not disclose whether he was sufficiently impressed to clear the way for Kaiser to apply his assembly line technique to the building of huge cargo planes. Kaiser said he and Mr. Roosevelt did not even mention that subject today.

BRICKER LAUDS PRESS ON SCRAP CAMPAIGN

Praises Efforts in Averting Nationwide Steel Shortage.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, Oct 2 — Urging observance of National Newspaper week beginning yesterday, Gov. Bricker in a letter to the Ohio Newspaper association lauded the scrap drive efforts of the Ohio press.

His letter stated:

"By a noteworthy coincidence newspaper week happens to fall this year within the newspapers united metal scrap drive, which has been undertaken by the press of the country at the urgent appeal of the war production board.

"When recently the nationwide scrap metal drive was threatened with failure, partly because too many people were not convinced of its validity, the war production board called upon the newspapers in all communities of the nation to accept what Donald M. Nelson (war production chief), called the No. 1 job of the hour in the war effort, namely, to bring about the collection of all available scrap metal before winter, in order to keep the steel mills and foundries operating at capacity.

"There was instant and electrifying response on the part of newspapers everywhere. Almost overnight regional committees were organized by the newspapers of the country. The resultant campaign, now in full motion, is a striking example of the efficiency of democracy when an honest need arises and the public is reliably informed.

"I am highly pleased to know that National Newspaper week will be observed again this year from Oct 1 to 8 and may I express, through you, my thanks to the newspapers of Ohio and a hope that this special week will serve to call the attention of the public to the very fine service they render."

H. E. Smith Elected President Of U. S. Rubber Co., War Plant Operator

Receives Promotion as Company Activities Expand Rapidly.

Herbert E. Smith has been elected president of United States Rubber Co., according to announcement by F. B. Davis Jr., chairman of the board and chief executive officer of the company. Mr. Smith has also been elected chairman of the executive committee and a member of the finance committee.

Mr. Smith's promotion, which will enable him to share with Mr. Davis more of the growing load on management, was prompted by the company's rapidly expanding activities, including operation of eight new munitions plants for the government, in addition to more than a dozen plants of its own in war production from coast to coast. The Scioto Ordnance Plant will be operated by the company.

Starting with the company 29 years ago, Mr. Smith had worked his way up to a vice president, vice chairman of the executive committee, and a director of the company.

In 1941 sales reached an all-time high of $315,000,000, and the first common dividend in 20 years was paid.

Harry E. Humphreys Jr., was also elected vice chairman of the executive committee; and Bernard W. Doyle and Lammot duP. Copeland were elected to the finance committee. # Marion Civic Orchestra Concerts To Be Discontinued Temporarily

Wartime Conditions Necessitate Action by Woman's Symphony Board, Sponsors of Music Organization.

Tire and gas rationing, war production industries and women's activities, together with other wartime "musts" canceled one of Marion's outstanding civic entertainment features when the Woman's Symphony board, sponsors of the Marion Civic orchestra, at a meeting Thursday voted to discontinue the orchestra's concert course for the present at least.

The orchestra programs will be resumed when times and circumstances allow, and if possible the board will sponsor or assist in the sponsoring of one or more events in the field of music here this season, the members unanimously decided at their meeting.

Basis of Decision

The decision to discontinue the concert course for the present came after much time and thought had been given to a study of the wartime situation here by Mrs. Robert E. White, president, and members of the artists' committee, and a thorough discussion of the matter by the members at yesterday's meeting.

Many of the musicians in the orchestra have been called to service with the armed forces while others are engaged in vital defense production, the survey revealed. Tire and gas rationing would make transportation for rehearsals practically prohibitive for both the director, Abram Ruvinsky of Columbus, and many of the musicians, and the same situation would prevail with the members of the board when it came to staging the annual sale of tickets, the members found. With practically all the board members engaged in some form of Red Cross or other wartime work, time to carry on a sale of tickets would be another matter to be considered in putting on the course.

To Maintain Organization

Members of the board will continue as an organization and will meet from time to time at the call of the president. The hope was voiced at yesterday's meeting that the board will be able to sponsor some outstanding event this year.

The Marion Civic orchestra was organized in the fall of 1934, under the direction of Abram Ruvinsky of Columbus and sponsorship of the Woman's Symphony board. In addition to the outstanding programs presented by the orchestra, many noted artists have been presented on the concert courses. Earl Ruhlman is president of the orchestra. Mr. Ruvinsky served as director since the orchestra was organized and the past presidents, Mrs. H. K. Mouser, Mrs. J. Malcolm Strellitz, Mrs. Esther Michel, Mrr. Robert Smith and Mrs. Eugene H. Moore, make up the artists' committee to arrange for programs.

100 Are Tea Guests of Harding High Class

"Do come in for a cup of tea," was the invitation extended to faculty members and home economics students of Harding High school Tuesday afternoon by members of the advanced home economics class. Approximately 100 persons accepted the invitation to tea, which was served from 4 until 5:30. June Rider and Joy Boulton served as hostesses with Jeanetta Roberts and Betty Lou Wagner as assistant hostesses.

The girls' color scheme of pastel pink, yellow and blue was carried out with pink and yellow hardy chrysanthemums in a blue bowl. Tea, open face sandwiches and cookies which the girls had made were served, and favors made by the girls were in the shape of teapots. Serving were Genetne Wright, Corrine Crafty, Ruth Wagner and Lena Nicolosi. The work was done under the direction of Miss Pauline Stannard, home economics instructor.

New York, Oct. 2—The closer Hitler's enslaved continent comes to be apparent it is rushing headlong toward the point which is likely to prevent Hitler's ruthless conquests, if indeed it has not before then.

There is truth in the saying, "Where there is life there is hope," and it is reasonable that many of the conquered peoples will rise in revolt and misery and vengeance on their masters—that is, unless someone is able to keep the situation under control.

It is hard to foresee the end of this war if it were unmarked by sudden and revolutionary events which might mushroom to replace those which existed before the war, as the task of the peace to rehabilitate the world is the best one could hope for. It would be black indeed.

But that the allies already have taken cognizance of the possibility of this situation and are making plans to cope with it is the solution lies in the possible cooperation between Russia and America. In connection it is clear significance that British foreign minister Anthony Eden is devoting vast energy to the task of insuring this vital cooperation.

Trouble Brewing

The wealth of imagination that is growing out of the mind Hitler has dug. The Poles and Czechoslovakians and Norwegians—all the others whose countries have been massacred by the Fuehrer's murderous hatred eager to exact payment in full.

There is more to it than the hundreds of thousands who have been executed by the Nazi anti-Christ during his reign of Europe. Most of the continent has been ravaged. In many countries there is starvation. Even the best that the allies can offer anywhere outside their own domains and those of their allies is serfdom.

The quickest possible movement of conquered peoples are going to fight their way out of the morass of despond. And they will clutch at any sort of straw they think may help them. For that reason there certainly will be a guarantee—or so it will appear—that all pre-war boundaries will return to power. Not even the big three of the United Nations could determine this, be it from me to say, but I guess would want to in the end.

Hitler To Tighten Grip

Hitler announced in his speech of September 30 that he is about to consolidate his winnings. That can only mean that he will apply even more vicious regimentation to the unfortunate folk whom he has enslaved. They are condemned to labor for the benefit of the reich. He will continue the process of wiping out some of the proud peoples who refused to respond to the lash and replacing others with bastard races which are the result of deliberate cross-breeding with Germans.

The consolidation which Hitler hopes to effect this winter can only feed the volcanic fires. Those fires will consume him if the allies don't crush him first. His number is up in either event.

However, there is a way of preventing Europe from plunging into utter chaos as the war ends. That involves: (1) air-tight allied military control, and (2) quick relief in the way of food and other supplies.

Apropos of this, Foreign Secretary Eden the other night made an important statement in a speech at Leamington. Referring to the condition of people in the conquered countries he said:

"How do we propose to help them once the ever-increasing might of the allied forces begins to assert itself? The enemy must first be expelled by allied armies root and branch from the countries he has occupied and befouled. Law and order must be reestablished, civil administration set going, communications repaired and essential services of civilized life retored.

"This work must inevitably in the initial stages be carried out under military supervision since the allied armies could not operate satisfactorily unless the essential needs of distressed populations behind the lines were secured. But as operations proceed and conditions in the liberated countries begin to settle down, there must obviously be a progressive transfer of responsibility to the civil administration, particularly responsibility of maintaining security and feeding the population."

As already remarked, allied success in handling the crisis growing out of the war's end will depend on allied solidarity. Solidarity will come from complete understanding and trust among the big three.

It would seem therefore that an immediate task is to remove any distrust of motives which may exist. There can be no doubt that Russia and English-speaking allies are drawing closer. However, it's not so long ago that there was a wide gap between them and there still is work to be done.

This would explain Eden's activities in striving to tighten the bonds among the big three and, so far as regards the world situation, the bonds with China as well. China makes it the big four. This also presumably explains the mission of Special Ambassador Wendell Willkie to Russia and China.

America's Unknown Capacity

DONALD Nelson's report on war production for August conveys the idea that it wasn't good enough while being very good. This is one of the soft spots of the popular—and the official—attitude on the national capacity for turning out war material.

No one knows what that capacity is. Immediately after Pearl Harbor, with no immediate increase in machinery and independent of all other factors, it increased enormously, simply because workers developed stronger sentiments about the war. It could be increased by one of a number of things right now. For instance, if a government spokesman could persuade workers that their jobs will not be over when the war is over, production would soar. If unreasonable restrictions placed on effort by shortsighted labor leaders could be lifted, production would soar. Productive capacity is not entirely machinery and square feet of floor space and statistics; for the most part it is labor.

Nor is the productive capacity of the United States merely what some expert says it is. The national capacity is what would happen if every worker and every machine worked at the highest possible efficiency for the longest possible time. It has not even been approached yet. Figures showing percentage gains mean almost nothing, as Mr. Nelson apparently is aware of when he admits that production was greater than expected but still far short of being enough.

Hitler's Speech

IT HAS taken Adolf Hitler 70 minutes after five months to tell Germans what he thinks they need to know about the war, which is that they'll win it eventually.

He did not tell them how, which probably is the thing they want to know most right now. The reason he can't tell them how is because the enemy is "idiotic" and can't be depended on to attack where Hitler thinks he should.

This is positively the most encouraging thing about the military leadership of the United Nations that its worried followers have heard. If Adolf the Bloody at the end of three years of war is reduced to telling his thick-headed stooges that the other side is too dumb to hold still and be annihilated, things are looking up. Things apparently aren't coming his way any more.

You'll Grin and Bear It

ARE you one of the patriots peering into the crystal ball and moaning about the things you see there?

Have you been wondering aloud what you were going to do when they rationed gasoline and how you ever could get along without coffee?

Have you warned your family and your friends that things are going to be so bad before the end of another year that they can't even imagine what it's going to be like?

Are you one of those persons with a lot of statistics on tap to prove to all and sundry that the need for manpower shortly will be so great that it will be necessary to rip the fabric of American civilization from one end to the other to satisfy it?

Are you sure that the transportation system is going to break down under the extra load, that there is going to be an influenza epidemic without enough doctors and hospitals to care for the sick, that the new tax schedules will ruin middle class taxpayers and that before the end of 1943 all the married men with children will be in uniform?

In brief, are you one of the Americans who look ahead with nothing but the deepest misgivings and make a practice of declaring to everybody within hearing distance that you don't know what people are going to do?

Because if you are it's time to get yourself in hand. There's work to be done. The best place to start is on yourself if you've become affiliated with the "Oh my Gawd!" school—and a lot of Americans have been joining up.

There's no room for argument about a big change coming, probably the biggest change seen in this country since the last big change—and you can have your choice. There has been a big change already. If you doubt it, think back to a year ago. You are and you aren't doing a lot of things that were routine then. So are millions of America's finest young men, who have been undergoing the biggest changes of all.

Most of them didn't know how they'd ever be able to bear it either. But when the time came for them to find out, they grinned and they bore it. They made themselves part of the greatest fighting force ever organized under one flag in the history of the world. They did what needed to be done. They did it in the training camps, in the skies, on Bataan peninsula, in the Coral sea, at Midway and in all the corners of the earth where American manhood is making its influence felt.

And that is how you and your family and your friends and fellow citizens are going to get along in the next few years, too. You are going to grin and bear it. It's not too soon to start right now.

News Behind the News

Hitler's Loss at Stalingrad Includes Oil as Well as Heavy Casualties.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2—At Stalingrad Hitler committed himself to pay an extravagant price for a bauble of prestige.

The city was ruined by his dive bombers at the outset. Early he reached and cut the Volga river artery of Red commerce on both sides of the city, thereby attaining the main military objective in this sector.

But the Russians have used the crumbled city ruins as barricades, strong as any fort. His planes became useless for such close infighting. His tanks could only be used in twos and threes to chase snipers along devastated streets.

Thus he has had to sacrifice ground troops heavily to win street by street, day after day.

If the Russians could muster any kind of an offensive along the east-west line between the Volga and Don, north of the city, they could even yet break the back of the Stalingrad attack.

They called in some reserves from western Siberia, and threw them into this flank attack, but they were not able to break through.

The truth seems to be the Russians are better equipped materially and psychologically for the kind of last ditch hand-to-hand defensive grappling of Stalingrad than they are for offensive operations.

But Hitler's losses in Stalingrad must be measured far beyond the casualties which the Russians are daily claiming.

Still Lacks Oil

All his bragging cannot conceal the fact that he has not yet obtained his oil. His commitment at Stalingrad prevented him from shifting enough troops down south to grab the prize Baku.

It also kept Rommel from getting the planes to develop his recent unexpected advantage on the Alamein line in Egypt.

The Red Black Sea fleet is still operating from small ports south of Tuapse, since its withdrawal from Novorossisk.

Furthermore, he has forced himself to keep his Russian drives fully manned, with winter coming on, and cannot send badly needed reinforcements (particularly planes) to the western front or to Rommel.

Mister Hitler can certainly pin no Nazi medals on his breast for what he got himself into at Stalingrad.

Therefore, while the news from that front has been repetitious, canned, and, consequently, somewhat dull, the broader facts of the situation are not wholly unfavorable.

Pressure On Laval

Hitler is pinching Laval again, and it looks like 30 or 40 French cargo ships in the Mediterranean will one of these days fall suddenly into German hands. Signs are accumulating that the deal has been made, if such extortion can be called a deal.

This sounds like Berlin is planning to reinforce Rommel for another major Egyptian drive during the winter.

Nazi Production

The British think they have positive proof that German production has fallen off recently, despite what Goebbels said in the sports palace. Retooling operations and the shortage of labor are responsible.

The retooling is probably a forecast that we can expect some innovations in planes, tanks and big guns. A couple of new German plane types already have appeared.

Hitler expects to have 3,000,000 workers from occupied countries in the factories of Germany by the end of this year.

Jap Activities

The Japs are still perched in full force on the Siberian border. While the ideal season for a sudden Jap declaration of war on Russia is nearing an end, a fall campaign there is still a very live prospect.

Recently, Tokyo has been spreading rumors, indirectly, that she has been trying to effect peace between Russia and Germany, thereby implying she does not intend to attack Vladivostok. No one believes such diplomatic feinting these days.

Without any publicity, the Japs recently have edged their way further south in the Gilbert Islands.

Their attacks on our positions in the Solomons are continuing actions and cannot be assumed to have ceased, even though you may not hear of them.

There is no reason why MacArthur's new campaign to roll them back through the Owen Stanley mountains in New Guinea should not be successful.

But these three points of Japanese activity (the Gilberts, Solomons, the New Guinea) are not large enough to account for the withdrawals made in China in preparation for some promised major offensive. That is still coming.

Preparation Period

Thus on all the world fighting fronts, the battle lines are reforming for coming events. The news from them has been stereotyped in recent weeks. Especially from Moscow and Berlin where news is regarded as a diplomatic weapon.

But if the situation may be said to be stabilized temporarily, it is a case of no news being good news for us. We are in a period of preparation and need time as much as anyone.

Politics Dead? Far from It. A Few "Political Stories."

By JACK STINNETT.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—There has been a story going around that politics is dead for the duration. It isn't true. Politics is no more dead than the World Series, women's fashions, or democracy.

That brings us right down to cases, because one of the best "political stories" circulating in Washington today centers around New York. I put "political stories" in quotes because this story is based on a lot of ifs and ands and buts. However, it's also based on a lot of solid political logic. And that's the way I'm going to pass it on.

Three Barrel Shot.

To shoot all three barrels at once, it's simply this: Thomas E. Dewey will be elected the first Republican governor of New York in 22 years; he will be nominated, without much opposition, as the Republican candidate for the presidency in 1944; and the Democratic nominee opposing him then will be Wendell L. Willkie.

As for that solid political logic, here's the way the Washington observers are figuring it: (1). The split in the Democratic ranks in New York over the governorship has been irreparable. President Roosevelt, for party's sake, will make some outward show of backing the Democratic nominee, John J. Bennett, but it won't be enough, in the first place the President is really too preoccupied with war to take time out to enter a political fracas. In the second place, his one-time political sidekick, James A. Farley, is said by insiders to have carried the feud so far in the bitter end battle for Bennett against the President's choice, Sen. James M. Mead, that the President has no alternative but to make a simple "I'll-vote-for-the-party" statement.

(2). Dewey, in spite of his youth, some previous defeats, and a few political faults, is the kind of a vote-getter the Republicans in New York have been needing for a long time.

Democrat at Heart.

Now as for Willkie: (1). In spite of the tar-and-feathers and things he accumulated by shifting over to the Republican party and in spite of the fact that he lead a big corporation, he has never been anything but a Democrat at heart and a liberal (if not left-wing) one at that.

(2). Although comparatively unknown nationally in 1940, when he won the Republican nomination, he has become an international figure second in stature only to the President.

(3). His trips abroad in support of the war effort and his last in particular have demonstrated that he has the confidence of President Roosevelt in this emergency to an extent that no "also-ran" has had from any president since the infancy of our democratic system.

(4). For the most part, the Republican leaders have showed little interest in cooperating with Willkie.

(5). Unless President Roosevelt runs for a fourth term, whom else are they grooming for their 1944 candidate?

Press Keeps Light of Freedom Burning

By BYRON PRICE
Director of Censorship

(Written in observance of National Newspaper Week, Oct. 1 to Oct. 8.)

WASHINGTON—To ask whether newspapers are important in this war is like asking whether light is important in a dark world.

Even in the totalitarian countries, which are our enemies, newspapers continue publication; and you may put it down in the book that such publication would not be permitted unless it contributed definitely to total warfare.

To be sure, the totalitarian newspapers are not true newspapers according to our American standards. But they do contain a certain amount of news. There are things in this modern world which even the most brutal of our enemies do not dare to keep from their own people.

In free America, the light must and does burn far more brightly. It is difficult to imagine what utter chaos would result if the newspapers of this country unanimously suspended publication for a period of a single week.

News broadcasting would be reduced to a negligible minimum, mously suspended publication for the sources of information upon which broadcasting so largely depends would have disappeared. The country en masse would be at the mercy of rumor mongers. The loss of morale and of national purpose on the home front would more than cancel out the bravest ventures of our armies and our ships of war.

The peculiar importance of American newspapers to the war effort springs from the high degree of public confidence which they enjoy. From long experience the American people expect our newspapers to do the best they can to record events factually and objectively, to praise what is praiseworthy, and to criticize where criticism is needed.

The public knows that certain information will be withheld in wartime, but it expects that process to effect only such curtailment as may be imperative for the protection of the lives and interests of Americans.

With few exceptions our newspapers are fulfilling these expectations. Thus they are performing a war service the importance of which can be measured only in terms of the national destiny itself.

Burlesque Became So Popular Took It Away from Poor Man and Put on a $4.40 Price.

I THINK it is a disquieting symptom of present and perhaps of the future that poor man is being robbed of his strip for the benefit of the rich. It is one of many social injustices that are overlooked in these times like these.

The strip tease is a commodity peculiar to a form of public entertainment known as burlesque and until recently it has always been retailed at a price that put it in reach of the proletariat. This price was seldom over a clam, or dollar, anywhere, and in some places even less.

The strip tease is an enchanting process of slow removal of garments by a lady, preferably young, of physical contour, form and calculated to please the human eye. The object of the process is somewhat obvious. Strip means to remove. Tease is to vex, harass or irritate. The slow stripping, as aforesaid, does all of these to the senses of the observer, the vexation, harassment and irritation developing from the fact that the garments do not come off quickly and more completely.

The strip tease has been an institution in burlesque for some years, and, at the original price, a source of great entertainment to the mass line audiences unable to afford higher priced diversion. A poor man whose purse was sufficient to meet the turnstile tariffs of the better theaters could go into a burlesque house for a moderate fee and there, mid the clouds of cheap tobacco smoke and the odors of the peanut and popcorn dispensed by raucous venders in the aisles and the aroma of his fellow men, some of them with their shoes off, could revel in rich visual enjoyment and high mental anticipation that the strippers might go even farther than somewhat.

THE STRIP TEASE reached a tall peak of artistic development among some of its exponents. I call to mind exotic Ann Corio, ethereal Gypsy Rose Lee, volatile Hinda Wassau, fiery Rose La Rose, and exciting Margie Hart, among others. How those gals can take off their duds! They are all "neat strips" and in the heyday of burlesque packed the houses of the Atlantic seaboard with the deserving poor men. A couple of these ladies get as high as $1,000 per week for their esthetic disrobing.

Eventually, word was bruited about among the rich that the poor were having a good time with these simple little spectacles and, as you know the rich can never abide the poor enjoying any pleasures. I saw the handwriting on the wall some years ago when swank night club producers began presenting strip by young ladies but without bothering with the artistry of the stripping. They just hurled them at their audiences raw.

The next step was the bare-faced robbery of the poor by Broadway theatrical producers. They began putting on burlesque shows, dusted up at $4.40 per head, which would have been all right except that the rich revolted on that it was now too good for the poor. At least I like to think it was the rich who incited the cops to putting out of business in the burlesque houses in New York City the same thing that were enjoying in the higher priced joints. I like to blame the rich for everything.

I HAVE visited several burlesque houses in various parts of the nation lately and am deeply pained by the changed atmosphere generally, but more particularly by the decadence of the strip tease. The exposure thereof in the house of the poor man are not permitted to display as much of their forms divine as you can see any day on any bathing beach, though around the corner at a lower price the rich may see all.

I think this is responsible for much of the current ennui among the poor.

Scent G-Men Hunt Oakmoss

By H. W. BLAKESLEE
Wide World Features

NEW YORK—American forests and mountains are being searched for oakmoss wanted by the perfumery industry.

Oakmoss is neither a moss nor does it grow necessarily on or near oak trees. It is a lichen, one of the variety of plants which grow on rocks, fences, deserts and dripping swamps and on mountain tops higher than any other vegetation.

The oakmoss used in perfumery has been coming from Jugoslavia. It contains a resin used both for its own odor and for its ability to hold other odors in a perfume.

Sixteen American oakmosses have been found to date, only one of which can be used, as it is not as satisfactory as the imported lichen. This one, Evernia vulpina, came from Oregon. The Givaudanian, a perfumery journal, says this lichen would be usable as a war substitute provided it can be found somewhere in quantity abundance.

This plant is sulphur-colored to green-gray in hue. Its stems are nearly cylindrical and branch profusely toward the tips. It is reported to grow on trees and old wood, and rarely on rocks. It has been found from Nebraska and South Dakota westward to the Pacific.

Men Behind the Scenes

(From Forbes Magazine)

The five most important "inside" advisers on national policy during the fiercest and most powerful war which this country has ever fought—the "Kitchen cabinet" of the President and Commander-in-Chief, a group which seldom meets together but forms his most trusted behind-the-headlines team—

Harry Hopkins, 52, born in Sioux City, social worker.

Samuel I. Rosenman, 46, born in San Antonio, Tex., but brought up in New York City, lawyer.

Felix Frankfurter, 59, born in Vienna, Austria, early life in New York, legal scholar, Justice of U. S. Supreme Court.

Lowell Mellett, 58, born in Elwood, Ind., newspaperman.

Wayne Coy, 38, born in Franklin, Ind., New Deal career man.

These are the five men nominated as Washington's most important back-stage counselors in a poll of Washington correspondents conducted by Forbes Magazine.

There is no unanimity on the top five or the top ten. There is even less agreement in ranking the leaders. This is chiefly due to the fact that any such list is constantly changing. Best illustration of the rise and fall of personal barometers of national influence is the fact that more than 50 persons voted for in balloting on the "high five."

Hopkins and Frankfurter, headliners in their own right, were generally listed as "runners" because of the unusual positions they held and the diversity of their extra-curricular activities.

A Promise for Tomorrow

BY ELEANOR ATTERBURY

CHAPTER 14

Wrong Proposal

PETE'S recovery was so rapid as to be miraculous. After that first crisis, he weathered the lesser storms of pain and discouragement himself, fortified by his splendid constitution, his strong will. And comforted, Julie added with a little pang, by Dawn's constant devotion.

At that, Julie conceded fairly, Dawn had been good for him. Her sweetness, her little feminine tricks to flatter him, cheer him, entertain him had filled the long hours of convalescence. Hardly a day of the three weeks since the operation had she failed to bring him a book, a special box of fruit, some frivolous bit of news.

Julie's own daily visits, short always because they must be wedged in between appointments, only served to prove Dawn's companionship was good medicine for him. She always found them laughing over some joke, some meaning they shared, some foolishness of Dawn's. On the rare occasions that Julie had found him alone, she'd felt her own tongue tied with embarrassment of the memory of her impassioned plea. Did he remember that she'd told him she loved him, wanted his recovery more than anything in the world? Did he know that it had been she who pressed her lips to his trying to pour life-giving warmth into them? And if he did remember, was he sorry for her now, embarrassed too, perhaps?

Her one attempt at lightness had been nearly disastrous.

"You're a good patient, Pete," she'd said, trying to ignore that sense of hostility she detected.

"Who?"

"You justify my theory that recovery depends more on the patient than on the doctor. I was sure the operation would be a success. I tried to convince Dad of that long ago."

"And he was afraid I couldn't take it?" Pete finished dryly. "Well, thanks for your undying faith in me, Sissy. Always wanted to be a hero."

"It wasn't that—exactly—" she tried to fix it.

"Then, because I justified your diagnosis, Doctor?" he suggested. "Always glad to give a struggling young doctor a chance to try out her theories."

Dawn's Sudden Plan

That, as a matter of fact, was true. Dr. Tom had given full credit to his daughter in the discussion of the case with Dr. LeMeure. And the Belgian surgeon had taken an hour of his precious time to talk with Julie about Pete's case in particular and the general subject of spine injuries. Julie'd been proud of the moment he had shaken hands with her as an equal.

But memory of that proud moment stained her cheeks guiltily now under Pete's sarcasm.

"Looks as if I'd scored on that one," he teased now, but sharpness was still there behind his smile. "Dr. Julie Hamilton rises hourly to fame. Run along now. I'm practically cured so I won't be an interesting specimen from now on."

Julie had "run along" and quickly lest Pete catch sight of the tears that flooded into her eyes so easily these days. She was always glad to see Dawn, lovely in a smart blue sport suit and matching hat. She would take away Pete's hurt, Julie told herself. If only she knew what made him so cactus sharp, so easily offended—

She smiled as Dawn came toward her, high heels clicking like castanets on the bare floor.

"Julie darling, aren't you thrilled with your patient's marvelous recovery?"

Julie nodded. "Yes, I am. But I think part of that recovery is due to you," she added honestly.

"I hope so. I think Pete is just wonderful. I adore him, really I do."

Julie suddenly remembered a line—"The lady doth protest too much"—and wondered if it applied to Dawn.

"I've a marvelous idea, Julie," she rushed on, "and I'm hoping you'll back me up. I think Pete needs change and complete rest and quiet when he leaves here. And I believe he'd get well twice as fast if he were up in the mountains at the cabin. There's plenty of room for a nurse. And I could send Jarvis and one of the maids up to run the house. And we could go up occasionally—on week-ends maybe — to see him. But otherwise he'd just rest and fish and get well. Don't you think that's a wonderful idea."

"Yes, I do. What does Pete think of it?"

"I haven't told him yet. I wanted to get doctor's orders first!" She smiled prettily. "I'll go tell him now."

"Better not tell him I approve," Julie said wryly. "He hates 'doctor's orders.'" This doctor's anyway, she added silently and turned quickly to the big revolving door, let it whisk her outside into the hot afternoon sun.

Another Problem

Bart was waiting for her in her car. Had, from the mute evidence of the over-flowing ash-tray, been waiting for some time.

"Any chance for an interview with the busiest doctor in town, do you suppose?" he said, mocking humility. "I've an awful ache that needs treatment right away." He put his hand over his heart, dramatically. "Here."

Julie laughed. "I've a suspicion your heart condition is chronic."

"It is now," Bart agreed promptly. "But it could be cured. A simple three-letter prescription."

"Aren't you ever serious?"

"Not more often than I can avoid. But—" he pulled Julie toward him. "I'm serious about this, Julie. Dead serious."

She looked up, a smile playing about her lips. "You mustn't be, Bart."

"Will it make any difference when I tell you I've been accepted into the Navy? That I'm leaving exactly three weeks from today—destination unknown!"

"Oh, really Bart!" She turned in the wide seat to face him, the smile faltering. "I'm glad and yet —of course—"

"Of course—what? You'll marry me before I go?"

She shook her head. "Please, Bart, don't make it so hard."

"Marry me when I come marching home!" he persisted.

She drew a long breath, tried to draw away from him. "Listen, Bart. I've told you I don't love you enough to marry you today. And it wouldn't be fair to make a promise for tomorrow that I couldn't keep."

"You don't give me much to fight for, Julie."

She stiffened. "After all, you have your country to fight for. Your liberty, your way of life—your own honor. As if that weren't enough to justify any sacrifice."

"Don't go noble on me, Julie. Heroics sound fine in speeches but you know as well as I do soldiers wouldn't be soldiers if they weren't paid for it."

"Bart Rogers! That's not true," Julie flamed instantly. "Even you couldn't be that cynical."

"All right. I was only kidding." He grinned, caught her hand. "You see how much I need you, Julie. Without you, I won't amount to a cipher. With you—" He tipped her head back, kissed her swiftly. "—I could come home covered with medals and glory. Can't you see it's your duty to your country to say you'll wait for me."

Julie shook her head helplessly.

Home-Made Gadget Aids in Army Rifle Practice

Soldiers get a few "pointers" on rifle shooting.

Wide World Features

CAMP LEE, Va.—The American soldier prides himself on being the finest rifle marksman in the world, and his careful training has paid dividends on the world's battlefields ever since Bunker Hill.

Now America needs trained riflemen again. Lieutenant Jerome Roth and Sergeant Jack Montepierto of Camp Lee's 8th Quartermaster Training Regiment agreed something was also needed to supply quickly the training Americans hadn't received in two decades of peace.

They went to work and produced this whatsis. It's an ingenious device which simply and accurately trains a soldier's sighting, aiming and trigger squeeze, the all-important basis of marksmanship.

The soldier sights along his rifle until the sights are properly aligned with the far target. The instructor then adjusts the small movable target, mounted on the base-board, until the small pointer is perfectly aligned with the bulls-eye on the target.

The instructor then throws the gun off the target and orders the soldier to put the gun "on the target again. The pointer infallibly indicates whether the soldier is sighting perfectly — and the kind of errors he makes.

VETERANS—You men who fought the last War—make this your job. To see that no American boy shall fall because a lack of scrap deprived him of a fighting chance.

SCRAP SLACKERS CAN LOSE THIS WAR!

It's squarely you to you. The mills need scrap to make the steel to go across the sea as ships, and tanks, and guns. They need it now—and in the months to come. For all new steel must be 50% scrap—and the mills are running out. They haven't enough for even 30 days more production—then they'll be shutting down.

Unless you get to work. Unless you go into your basement and your attic and rout out the junk that's there. Talk about it to your friends and neighbors—you men who know what war is like. Tell them . . . "Don't be a scrap slacker. Get your scrap ready for the drive that is in progress now!" Then get to work and help them do it.

We're out to fill the junk yards—to make every salvage depot a towering tribute to our fighting men. And don't think the job is done when the scrap starts piling up. Because the war must end before the need for scrap is over.

Do this to help make sure it ends our way!

HENDERSON DENIES FIRST RENT "FREEZE" APPEAL

Declares Plan Not Intended to Assure Fair Return.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2—Price Administrator Leon Henderson, denying the first protest against rent ceilings to reach him, today held that the act under which rents were frozen was not intended to see to it that every landlord was receiving an "adequate" or "fair" return on his investment.

Theresa E. Reimel of Philadelphia, had asked that the rent regulation in that area be amended to permit her to charge $60 instead of $45 a month for her property, on grounds that the freezing of rents at levels of last March did not enable her to obtain a fair and reasonable income from the property.

Henderson said congress had chosen the freeze system of rent control in order that rents would be stabilized "at the level which landlords and tenants had worked out for themselves by free bargaining in a competitive market which had not yet been affected by the impact of war activities."

"In suggesting the use of the date method, congress did not assume that all landlords were receiving the same rate of return or that each landlord was receiving an 'adequate' or 'fair' rate of return," Henderson declared. "Nor was it assumed that all landlords of comparable housing accommodations were receiving exactly the same rentals."

THEFT OF SMALL PART HOLDS UP 17 AIRPLANES

Clevelander Given Fine on Larceny Charge.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Oct. 2—Because a war worker stole one small part for an airplane from the plant where he was employed, 17 planes were delayed for five hours, it was reported at a municipal court hearing here.

The worker, 26-year-old Charles Kaly, pleaded guilty to a petit larceny charge and told Judge Joseph A. Artl he had taken the part, a few nuts, bolts and other articles as "souvenirs."

Officials of the National Screw & Manufacturing Co., Kaly's employer, said the theft of one part last June held up a plane until another part could be made. This plane, they added, was carrying parts to the west coast, and its delay held up 16 other planes waiting to take the aircraft parts to other places.

Kaly was fined $50 and costs and sentenced to 30 days in the workhouse.

AIR RAID WARDENS MEETS NEIGHBORS

Civilian Defense Unit Now Ready for Blackout.

The "get acquainted with your air raid warden" program last night was about 90 per cent effective, Earl Ruhlman, chief air raid warden, reported today. Nearly everyone turned out to see their wardens as they made their rounds between 7:30 and 8 o'clock.

"We are now ready for a blackout," Mr. Ruhlman said, "and we shall have it as soon as permission is obtained from the state civilian defense office in Columbus."

The wardens used police whistles and wore arm bands designating their office to make sure that people in their district would recognize them. Each warden has been given a poster to put in his window so that people will know where he lives.

Mr. Ruhlman stated today he intends to ask authorities to make it a misdemeanor for anyone but duly authorized persons to use police whistles.

Salvage Drive Head Quits in Morrow Co.

Special to The Star

MT. GILEAD, Oct. 2 — Sam Richardson, chairman of the salvage campaign in Morrow county this week presented his resignation to Nelson Campbell, whose own resignation as executive director of civilian defense became effective yesterday.

In a letter to Mr. Campbell, Richardson said, "I wish to submit my resignation as chairman of the salvage committee in Morrow county. My work requires so much of my time that I feel that I can not do justice to the salvage program.

He is employed by the county engineer's office. No successor for either Mr. Richardson or Mr. Campbell.

The Argentine government will financially assist an organization formed to develop vegetable substitutes for coal to relieve a fuel shortage.

MORROW CO. PLANS PEARL HARBOR DAY

To Observe Anniversary with War Bond Auction.

Special to The Star

MT. GILEAD, Oct. 2—A huge countywide community auction to be held Monday Dec. 7 at the Morrow county fair grounds in Mt. Gilead is being planned by the Morrow county war bond and stamp committee as the county's observance of the first anniversary of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor.

All persons consigning stock or produce at the sale will take their pay in war bonds and stamps. Auctioneers will be asked to donate their services.

Harry Nelson was named to serve as general chairman of the committee planning the auction. Tentative plans call for the closing of all retail stores and an effort to urge everyone to buy a bond on Dec. 7.

Whisky Production Ordered Stopped Oct. 8

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3 — The war production board today ordered the entire output of the nation's distilleries diverted into industrial alcohol for wartime purposes after Oct. 8.

Directives were issued to the beverage distilling industry to ship its entire output of "high wines"—raw whisky of 120 to 140 proof—to commercial redistilling plants for conversion into 190 proof industrial alcohol used in explosives and in butadiene, the main ingredient of synthetic rubber.

WPB officials had estimated there now is something more than 3½ years' supply of beverage whisky in the country, despite already extensive conversion of the industry to industrial alcohol output.

About half the industry, by volume, has been converted to industrial alcohol production in the course of this year.

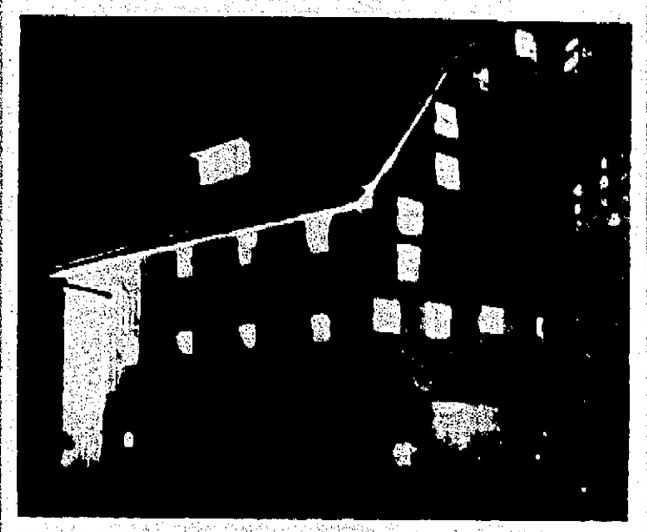
Hen Hotel; Where Guests Pay Their Rent in Eggs



NITE LIFE—How the hotel looks at 3 A. M. with sun ray lamps on every floor encouraging egg production.

SERVICE ELEVATOR — Earl Geiger shovels waste matter into shute extending from top to first floor.

Wide World Features

BROOKLYN, Ia.—Comes now a new wrinkle in chicken raising—a five-story apartment hotel for chickens.

The proprietor, elevator operator, custodian, porter and "room service clerk" is Earl Geiger, who converted one of two barns on his place into the "hotel" for his flock.

Besides the electric elevator there is running water, a cafeteria that never closes, sun lamps, and other little conveniences designed to make the hens happy—and lay more eggs.

Right now, 1,100 chickens, pullets and hens occupy the top four floors. The main floor is temporarily home for 300 breeding ewes.

Penthouse Pullets

Perhaps you have lived in an apartment up next to the roof. Well, some of Geiger's hens know how you felt. The top two floors are above the eaves, with dormer windows cut into the sides of the hip roof.

The building is insulated with corn cobs crumbled and forced between inner and outer walls. Geiger says the water pipes didn't freeze even in sub-zero weather last winter.

Geiger made the job of cleaning litter from the upper floors easy. He built a chute designed like a laundry drop in a large house.

He uses ground cobs scattered on the floors to catch the litter; claims it is more absorbent than straw and won't pack.

Greatest thrill in the development for Geiger are the sun lamps. He gets up at 5 a. m. to turn them on (will have an electric clock for that purpose when he gets time to make one) and leaves them on three hours over the water troughs.

The hens get their natural sunlight through screened windows.

The watering troughs are sections of eaves with the ends closed. A pressure system provides water on all floors and there is a float-operated valve to make certain the hens never go thirsty.

Stowaway Trouble

Geiger built the elevator, which travels 40 feet, with odds and ends of machinery. It has a capacity of 900 pounds and uses a half-horsepower motor. Hens are caged before being transported, but now and then strays get aboard because, says Geiger, "they seem to like to ride." Several times a hen has fallen off, but none has been killed.

Lumber for the entire remodeling project was cut from native wood and Geiger did most of the work himself. He estimated it cost about $700.

The barn has a capacity of 1,400 laying hens. Geiger is getting 200 dozen eggs a week now; expects 500 dozen weekly by next spring.

Says Geiger:

"This is really just a sideline. I'm raising stock and sheep and farming 120 acres of land."

Galion Photographic Studio Will Close

One of Oldest Business in City Will Suspend.

Special to The Star

GALION, Oct. 2—October 15 will see the closing of one of the oldest business establishments in Galion when the C. Burr Marsh & Son, photographic studio closes its doors. Mrs. Robert W. Marsh, proprietress since the death of Robert Marsh on Aug. 8, announced Wednesday that on account of the war restrictions on supplies as well as shortage of competent photographers, she had decided to close the business.

The studio was established in April, 1890, and has been located at its present site on Harding Way East since 1918. Charles Burr Marsh, the original owner, who died in 1941, was a member of "Who's Who In Professional Portraiture In America," a book which named 136 of the nation's 100,000 photographers. The work of the studio has taken many prizes at national photographic conventions.

Robert Marsh, son of the founder, was active in the firm from 1914 until his death. Since August Mrs. Robert Marsh has continued the work with the aid of Emma Hartmann, Crestline photographer.

Suit Filed Against Marysville Company

MARYSVILLE, Oct. 2—Suit for foreclosure of mechanics lien and marshalling claims has been brought in common pleas court here against William H. Snodgrass, trustee, and Jiffy Join, Inc., by Edgar Conrad, and William J. Conrad & Sons of this city. They seek payment of $6,275.22 allegedly due on an account.

The plaintiff asks that a plant constructed less than a year ago for Jiffy Join, Inc., be sold. The plant was constructed by a group of Marysville men who formed a trusteeship to provide a factory for Jiffy Join, Inc., of New York. It was impossible to complete the building before war was declared. Although part of the machinery of the New York company was moved here and a few employes have been making some material, the factory has not been occupied. The company manufactures patent fasteners, mainly for automobile upholstering and the mattress trade. The war effort has greatly curtailed its operations.

Lima Referee Steals Show at Marion Fight Card by Disqualifying 2 Meanies

Gil Lautzenhauser of Lima, making his first appearance here as a referee in a wrestling match, stole the show from all-star cast of mat performers last night at the Armory arena.

The lucky Lima war plant worker became the first wrestling official to appear here in many months who let the mat toughies know who is the real boss inside the ring.

He disqualified Wild Bill Zimovich of Nicaragua in the featured 10-round boxing match after disqualifying Soldier Thomas of Portland, Ore., in the one-hour semi-final match.

Lautzenhauser suffered plenty of abuse from the ring contestants. At one time or another he was the target of flying fists from all six of the fighters. During the Buddy Knox-Wild Bill Zimovich match, the latter turned on Lautzenhauser and was immediately disqualified.

The Knox-Zimovich 10-rounder, arranged as a grudge fight between the two, turned out to be a comedy. Zimovich failed to land any real blows during any of the four rounds which the fight lasted. Zimovich's only claim to as much as a threat during the fight was in the second round when he tackled Knox. After getting his fighter opponent down, Zimovich proceeded to pummell him.

Knox sent the Great Zim to the mat three times in the last third round.

After Zimovich was disqualified in the fourth round by Referee Lautzenhauser, Knox sidestepped the referee and struck Zimovich a blow which sent him to the mat. Lautzenhauser counted Zimovich out and Knox was given the win by a kayo.

In the semi-final match which brought together Rufus Jones of New York City and Soldier Thomas, even the spectators lost a hand. After Thomas was disqualified for rubbing soap in Jones' eyes, one spectator attacked Thomas and took the soap away from him. Jones won the first fall with his cranium cracker. During the fight at least two bottles were hurled into the ring, one striking Jones. Patrolman Harry Smith was summoned to escort Thomas from the ring after the fight was over.

Lefty Paeer of Toledo and Jack Hobbs of Leesville, Ind., fought to a draw in the 20-minute preliminary fight.

"Run" In Recent Weeks Exhausts Columbus Supply.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 2—Hundreds of persons lined up before a downtown chain store for coffee today as the supply of that favorite breakfast beverage grew acute in Ohio.

The line-up was typical of a situation prevailing in other larger Ohio cities, where a "run" on coffee in recent weeks has drained supplies from the counters of many stores a survey of merchants disclosed.

Chain stores appeared hardest hit. Many in Columbus have been without coffee for days at a time. In Cleveland, two of the biggest chains were without coffee all week.

Lines of customers form at stores which sell coffee only at certain periods in the morning and afternoon. Customers stand in lines that stretch for blocks hoping the day's supply will not be exhausted before their turn is reached.

While some Toledo merchants doled out small quantities of coffee one Columbus chain signed up regular customers and put them on an informal rationing basis of half a pound a week.

Merchants and coffee roasters, their supplies reduced by 35 per cent under a year ago, blamed the scarcity on hoarding by housewives. Some housewives were reported to have made rounds of all stores in their communities to buy a coffee supply.

One Cleveland coffee house publicly suggested coffee be restricted to breakfast with tea and milk for the remaining meals.

UNION CO. WOMAN HURT IN ACCIDENT

In Marion Hospital After Car Goes Into Ditch.

Mrs. Edna Cowgill, 41, of near Richwood, is in City hospital for treatment of injuries suffered last night about 7:30 when her car left the road and overturned in a ditch.

The accident occurred about four miles south of Richwood on a township road.

Her physician said this morning he regarded her condition as "fair" and pending reading of X-ray pictures, could not determine whether her injuries are serious. He said she was cut about the face.

Mrs. Cowgill's husband, Ira Cowgill, is employed at Patterson Field, Dayton. The state patrol notified its Dayton station to get in touch with Mr. Cowgill. He had not arrived here shortly before noon, the hospital reported.

The state patrol, notified of the accident by the Sanders funeral home in Richwood which sent an ambulance to the scene following a call from a passerby, had not completed an investigation this morning, pending a talk with Mrs. Cowgill.

It is believed that the accident occurred during a rain and that Mrs. Cowgill was thrown under the car when it overturned. The car was damaged extensively, the patrol reported.

Harold Alexander's desert fighters consolidated newly won positions on the central sector of the 35-mile El Alamein front, 80 miles west of Alexandria, after driving off an axis counterattack.

British military quarters in Cairo said the advance, carried out on Wednesday, was apparently a local operation to straighten lines rather than the prelude to a big new push. A communique described the front as quiet yesterday.

Overhead, fierce battles raged in the desert skies as British fighters clashed with axis dive bombers while other RAF warplanes attacked axis truck lines and pounded shipping in the harbor at Tobruk.

Six Planes Shot Down

The British said at least six axis aircraft were shot down and many damaged in one battle in which enemy dive bombers jettisoned their bombs on their own troops to escape the RAF's deadly fire.

"We had no losses in this engagement," a British communique said.

Heavy bombers of the U. S. army air force again raided the Greek harbor of Pylos yesterday, scoring a direct hit on one ship and many near misses on others.

Western Air War—RAF bombers, breaking a seven-night lull in their offensive against Germany, blasted the Nazi U-boat lair at Flensburg and attacked other objectives on the German Baltic coast, the British air ministry reported.

Enemy shipping also was attacked off the Dutch coast.

The air ministry's disclosure that 17 RAF bombers were missing from the night's operation indicated that perhaps 350 planes engaged in the attacks.

Britain itself had a quiet night.

Far Pacific—Japanese troops retreated deeper into the jungles of the Owen Stanley mountains in New Guinea today, cautiously pursued by Australian forces on the alert for a possible ambush.

A bulletin from Gen. MacArthur's headquarters said the Australians now were approaching Menari, a mountain hamlet 46 miles north of Port Moresby, where it was believed the Japanese might attempt to make a stand.

Menari lies four miles beyond Nauro, a ridge-top village which the Australians captured Wednesday after 10-mile advance in 24 hours.

Meanwhile, allied planes pounded Japanese bases at Salamaua and Buna, on the New Guinea east coast, and started Japanese troops along the mountain trails.

Labor Union Unveils War Service Tablet Listing Seventy-Six Names

Members Enrolled with Nation's Armed Service Honored; Major Ogden Gives Address.

The service tablet of Roosevelt Lodge No. 1281, International Association of Machinists, American Federation of Labor, affiliate, bearing names of 76 men now in armed service, was unveiled last night in Central Labor Union hall at a dedication program which included an address on citizen morale by Major Harold F. Ogden, acting commander of the Scioto Ordnance Plant.

The tablet, a white background with the names of the men in gold letters, is eight feet high and four feet wide, with an oak frame and glass-inclosed. At the top, on either side, are hand-painted American flags and in the center is an American eagle with spread wings, and the seal of the organization. The hand work was done by Walter O. Baker of Marion.

Families of the men in active service and members of the women's auxiliary, No. 277, were guests.

Major Ogden, in an address emphasizing the importance of the people at home backing up the men who have gone into service, quoted figures released by the National Association of Manufacturers relative to strikes and lost man-hours of labor.

He said the association's report showed that in June there were 182 strikes, as compared with 27 last January, an increase of 611 per cent, and that the number of man-hours lost since January has reached 7,176,311.

Major Ogden quoted from the report that in January statistics show there were 11,605 men on strike, with 369,570 man-hours lost, and that in June these figures increased to 81,775 on strike and 2,037,221 man-hours lost to industry.

Unveiling Ceremony

As the tablet was unveiled the names of each man in service was read by the secretary, George Johnson. Two boys, Merle Gosnell in army uniform and Sonny McGuire in navy grab, saluted as each name was read. Standing in front of the tablet was Rozanna Baldauf costumed as the Statue of Liberty.

E. J. Hollandshead, program chairman, in the dedication service said "we must and we will keep up our end of production so that these men, our co-workers, may have the materials and the arms they need on time."

Civilian Meat Supply Ordered Cut 20 Per Cent

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2—The amount of meat for civilian consumption was cut nearly 20 per cent today by a government order intended to assure sufficient quantities for the armed forces and lend-lease.

A preliminary to the meat rationing program which will limit consumers to about two and a half pounds of meat by the end of the year, the order was issued to meat packers last night by the office of price administration.

Effective until Dec. 31, it specifies the amounts of beef, veal, pork, mutton and lamb that packers may distribute for civilian use. Large packers slaughtering more than 500,000 pounds quarterly were ordered to reduce beef deliveries to 80 per cent of the amount distributed in the same period last year. Pork deliveries were cut 25 per cent and lamb and mutton, 5 per cent.

Smaller slaughterers were instructed to limit deliveries only to the amounts of their 1941 deliveries.

OPA's food requirements committee previously indicated veal would be cut to 80 per cent of the 1941 delivery. OPA, however, explained the armed forces did not plan to consume as large quantities as expected and consequently, veal deliveries would be limited to the amount delivered in the same period last year.

The army and navy said 80 per cent of the "cutter and canner" grades of beef will be taken by lend-lease.

Lard, liver, hearts and kidneys are not restricted by the order, and while canned and stuffed meats are not subject to quota restrictions, they will be affected because the meat used in their preparation is subject to the restrictions.

Quota violators are liable to a year's imprisonment or $10,000 fine, or both, and suspension of the right to deal in meat or other rationed products.

A MESSAGE TO EVERY DRIVER

You can save rubber and help win the war if you will do these things:

1. Drive only when absolutely necessary.

2. Keep under 35 miles an hour.

3. Keep your tires properly inflated.

4. Have them inspected regularly.

5. Share your car with others.

flag and the high school band will play "Song of the Victory Fleet."

Presentation of insignia to the employes by Mr. Schmeltzer will be recognized in an acceptance talk by Roy Bailey, president of Local No. 1949, United Steelworkers of America.

Workers' Award

The principal address will be followed by assembly singing of "God Bless America," with band accompaniment. Playing of "The Stars and Stripes Forever" by the band will conclude the program.

Mr. Shelton, commenting today on the award, said:

"Naturally, we are mighty proud of the honor we are having bestowed upon us. It shows we have accomplished something toward final victory. It is only by realizing that every one of us has an important job to do and by rolling up our sleeves and doing it, that such accomplishments materialize.

Praises Workers

"Switching from peacetime to wartime production was no easy task. It called for all the skill and ingenuity that every man in the Marion organization could muster. It meant casting traditional production practices to the four winds and learning how to do things more speedily, more efficiently and with less time out for final decisions. The war does not wait for production. Production must meet the strides of war. I am pleased to say every man here took these drastic changes in his stride.

"That this all-out effort on the part of the men and women of The Marion Steam Shovel Co. has not been in vain is substantiated by the recognition each receives on Oct. 5, when the maritime labor merit badges are distributed among the employes."

The company is building portal cranes for the maritime commission, varying in capacity from three to 43 tons. The cranes are used in ship-building and for loading and unloading ships.

Proposes States Give Up Sales Tax for Duration

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2—A suggestion that states might well consider giving up their sales taxes for the duration to open the way for a federal sales levy sweeping "clear across the board" came today from Senator Herring (D-Iowa).

He made the remark in an interview just before he and other members of the senate finance committee met for a final inspection of the new tax bill, which contains no sales tax but has a 5 per cent "victory tax" on individual gross incomes over $624 a year.

Otherwise, the bill proposes steeper rates on individuals and corporations, a broadened tax base, and sharply increased excise levies.

NOW HE'LL TRY

Field Marshall Siegmund List (above) now has been given the task of trying to take Stalingrad. He succeeds General Fedor von Bock who in 37 days of siege has been unable to wrest the industrial city from the Reds.

Courthouse Clock Floodlights Going Out for Duration

Effective Monday, the four floodlights illuminating the courthouse clock will be turned off "for the duration," the Marion county commissioners announced today.

The action was taken as a precautionary measure against possible enemy attack, the board states. The clock as now illuminated would be an easy target for any enemy raids, the board believes, and turning off of the lights will provide more protection to the city, county and adjoining counties should this section of the country be attacked. The lights were placed in operation in 1920.

The small lights illuminating the dial of the clock will be maintained and in the event of a blackout, either trial or otherwise, will be turned off by the custodian of the building.

WHITNEY URGES U. S. RAILROAD CONTROL

Calls for Action To Prevent Transportation Breakdown.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Oct. 2 — The government should take over operation of the railroads immediately to avert a prospective breakdown of the nation's transportation system, said President A. F. Whitney of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen today.

"The quicker the railroads are taken over the better it will be, in my opinion, for the whole country," said Whitney, commenting on an article titled "Railroads—the Next Bottleneck," in the October issue of the brotherhood's magazine.

"The President should put in charge not only an expert in financing, but one who is capable of seeing that they're operated efficiently and for the people—not in the interests of the manipulators," Whitney asserted.

Noting WPB Chief Donald M. Nelson's report that war production increased eight per cent in August over July, the brotherhood president said further increases, "which the country wants, will hasten a breakdown of carriers by rail. The question of when that might happen is problematical.

"There is bound to be a shortage of motive power and rolling stock," due partly to increased business and partly to "the fact each railroad is operating as a unit. Many cars are being moved empty under their individual operation, when they should be carrying a load.

"Government operation," Whitney continued, "is not only advisable but imperative. There is a shortage of manpower on many railroads due to their aristocratic attitude in refraining from employing brakemen, firemen and yardmen who are over 27 years of age unless they have college or university educations."

"More is coming in," Mrs. McLain added.

Pleasant To Have "Scrap Party"

A big scrap party will be staged Monday at 12:45 p. m. on the Pleasant Township school grounds and pictures of it will be sent to the school's boys who have gone into service.

Supt. E. E. Banning announced the party plans today.

Every resident of the community who has scrap to give to the nationwide drive has been asked to get it to the grounds at the party time — in trucks, tractor-drawn vehicles, trailers, wagons, or any other means.

"We want everyone interested in the scrap drive and in our boys in service to be there," the superintendent said.

That there is a friendly rivalry between the schools of the county was indicated when he said, with a laugh: "One school is piling its scrap around a 15-foot pole. We're heaping ours around a 50-foot tree!"

Prospect Pile Reaches 2 Tons

One thousand and five keys, actual count, and about two tons of scrap have been collected already at the Prospect school, Supt. E. C. Secrest said this morning.

Approximately 150 questionnaires already have been returned by residents of the community who want pupils to collect their contributions.

Virtually 100 per cent of the contributions to date have come from residents of the village, brought in push carts, wheelbarrows and wagons manned by the pupils.

The scrap is being placed around a 15-foot pole and the goal of the drive is a scrap heap over the top of the pole.

The real drive will get under way Monday in districts zoned according to bus routes and mapped by the student council, of which Donald Hickok is president. The Commercial club of Prospect has offered its services to the school's campaign.

Wheelbarrows Pushed by Agosta Girls

Agosta school girls weren't fooling when they announced earlier this week they intended to take wheelbarrows with them in their canvass of the village in the countywide scrap drive. They trundled in more than a ton of metal yesterday and said the job isn't done. They balked a little, however, when Jess Beckley, railroad crossing watchman, ushered them to a coal heating stove he was willing to donate. They made arrangements to get some masculine help on that job. Mr. Beckley also donated about 250 pounds of other scrap.

Two farmers in the Agosta school district came through with donations of approximately one ton each. They are Fred Hoch and H. L. Payne. The students are making plans to pick up these and other gifts. One group from the school is scouring the Scioto river banks and reported substantial findings.

Old Motor and Bell Donated at LaRue

An old automobile motor and a dinner bell helped swell the scrap pile at the LaRue schools yesterday as students pushed their canvass of village and rural homes in the district.

One high school junior went after the canvassing job in earnest and reported he had contacted 15 homes in his first evening's work after school hours. Results of the canvass, which school officials said are definitely encouraging, are being assembled in preparation for students' field work next week.

The LaRue FFA organization is directing student activity in the scrap drive. Clair Oberdier is president, Edwin Denman vice president, Philip Hastings treasurer, Ernest Spitzer, secretary, Joe Miller reporter, Raymond Wilson advisor. District leaders they have assigned to scrap job are Clair Oberdier and Aaron Parish for the village and the following for the rural areas: Gene Warner, Harold Stumpp, Glenn Roshon, Leo Miller, Joe Miller, Warren Kramo, Raymond Wilson, John Snyder, Lester Foreman, Philip Hastings, Edwin Denman, Howard Waters, Donald Allen, Arthur Price, Howard Price, Ernest Spitzer, Curby Cochran, James Leibold and Robert Huntley. In many instances the rural group leaders are working in teams of two, with various assistants.

be followed in grades three to six.

Pile for Each School

A scrap pile will be built at each school. The proceeds from the sale of the material will be the property of the individual school.

Harding High school will release enough students Tuesday morning to make the solicitation for scrap from all business houses in the city.

When principals have been able to make an estimate of their materials for truck service for their district, they will send in notices of their trucking requirements. The city trucks will haul scrap from homes and business places to school scrap piles, and scrap dealers later will haul the metal from schoolyards to the junkyards.

Duty of All

In announcing the plans this morning, Supt. Holt said, "It is our duty and our privilege to get very piece of scrap in on this drive. Let's see how many tons of material your school produces."

Rev. Father W. J. Spickerman said the St. Mary parochial school plan will be very similar to that of the public schools and that every effort will be made to have the scrap ready for hauling by Wednesday morning.

Students are being instructed, in their canvass of the city, to tell the donor what school he or she attends and ask whether the owner wants to give his material to that school or to St. Mary. In case the scrap should go to St. Mary, the name and address of the owner will be taken and given to his principal. All principals will relay this information to Father Spickerman.

The operations announced by the navy today did not include any sub activities in the Solomon islands campaign since the navy refers to the Solomons as being in the South Pacific.

The navy's last previous submarine report was made on Sept. 17, suggesting that while the period covered by today's communique was not specified, it possibly covered a period of about two weeks.

TIRE SAVING SUGGESTION

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Oct. 2—Bingo games, prize fights, football games and fraternal meetings are "necessary." So says the transportation committee of the Mahoning county civilian defense office, which adopted a resolution asking the wartime abandonment of such affairs toward conserving tires.

Another New Guinea Plane Survivor Turns Up

By The Associated Press

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, Oct. 3—Another amazing story of an American who was dropped unprepared from the skies into the wilderness of this island's jungles and survived came to light today when 20-year-old Sergeant Thomas Riley of Old Landing, Ky., walked into a United States base.

The rain-drenched youth said he parachuted on Aug. 7 from the same plane in which Vern Haugland, Associated Press correspondent, was a passenger. Haugland now is in a hospital at Port Moresby recovering from the effects of 47 days in the jungle after he had bailed out of a plane.

Riley said he had spent 10 days walking with no food except a few native berries and then had found a native village where he was fed and guided to the nearest allied post.

Cardinals Edge Yankees, 4-3, To Even World Serie

By GAYLE TALBOT
Associated Press Sports Writer

ENROUTE WITH WORLD SERIES TEAMS, Oct 2—The St. Louis Cardinals in particular and National leaguers in general felt that they at least had tamed the 'unbeatable' New York Yankees badly worried today as the two world series rivals rolled toward Yankee stadium and a resumption of the battles tomorrow.

From the way the happy Cards were taking on over their 4-3 victory in yesterday's second game at St. Louis and the big plans they were making for taking the Yanks over the hurdles the next three days on their home grounds, anyone would have thought Billy Southworth's happy gamesters were at least a couple of games in front instead of merely having deadlocked the play-off at a victory apiece.

"We've got 'em plenty worried," one after another of the Red Birds chortled in the diner.

"And they're going to get more worried every game we give it to 'em from here on out," added Mort Cooper, ace of the Cards' mound staff, who was knocked loose by the Yanks in the series opener on Wednesday. Mort apparently had forgotten all about his own misfortune in his glee at rookie John Beazley's triumph over Joe McCarthy's sluggers yesterday.

Ford Frick, National league president, attached great significance to the fact that McCarthy stalked out frequently to complain of decisions in yesterday's defeat, and that he was sore as a wet hen because George Kurowski's timely triple that scored the Cardinals' third run was ruled a fair ball.

JOHN BEAZLEY
Cards' Winning Pitcher

"Ordinarily Joe doesn't leave that dugout three times a season," Frick insisted. "When he starts arguing the way he did yesterday you can bet he has something on his mind besides a baseball cap."

The Cards were inclined to think they had got in a jab on the Yanks that would bring important results in the remaining games. When Enos "Country" Slaughter dashed onto third after slugging his double off Ernie Bonham in the eighth inning, the Yanks looked slightly bewildered, the Cards declared.

"I suppose they thought we couldn't do things to 'em like that," said Coach Buzzy Wares. "They'll find out. Yesterday was the first chance the boys got to do a little base running. It upset 'em a little, too, when Johnny Hopp tore on to second after hitting his single in the fourth."

For all of the 23-year-old Beazley's stout-hearted pitching in the pinches yesterday, the consensus in the club car last night was that Slaughter gave the outstanding performance in the Cardinals' triumph.

The stage was set properly for the Cards' top hitters when he went to bat with two out in the eighth. The score was tied at 3-3. Charley Keller just having blasted a home run onto the roof of the right-field pavilion to climax a three-run Yankee rally. The 34,255

Then "Country" connected solidly, lacing a clean double-the right field line. Roy Cullenbine fielded it well and made to a to Rizzuto at second. But Phil Rizzuto let the ball through his legs. That was all Slaughter needed. By the time Yanks collected the ball as well as themselves, Slaughter was on third with the winning run.

Stan Musial, another Card freshman, then came through with first safety of the series, a hard single over center which Slaughter scored. Marion contributed on about the second hop. Slaughter scored.

And that wasn't the last of Slaughter's inspiration. In the keen's ninth, he made a great throw to save the day.

Bill Dickey, veteran Yank catcher, singled to right, and s back went in to run for him. Buddy Hassett delivered a deep to Slaughter's dire tion, and Stainback made the mistake of to go to third. Slaughter whipped a long, beautiful "strike George Kurowski who was straddling the bag, and Stainback well out. A moment later pinch-hitter Red Ruffing slammed a fly to Slaughter against the wall.

Even though Slaughter got the nod over Beazley, despite th that the kid from Nashville, Tenn., turned in a superbly col series debut and thoroughly deserved to win. The Yankees me him right from the start, but with the assistance of one fine d play in the fifth Johnny survived every menace until Keller co hold of a low curve in the eighth.

HARDING, ST. MARY GRIDDERS MAKE SECOND STARTS TONIGHT

Irish To Entertain Crestline Team at Harding Stadium; Prexies Tackle Mt. Vernon Eleven.

Marion St. Mary hopes to even its football record tonight in facing Crestline at 8:30 p. m. under the lights of Harding stadium.

The Irish eleven suffered a 20-0 defeat at the hands of a strong Tiffin Calvert team a week ago and a win tonight will give St. Mary a .500 average.

Crestline lost to Galion, an N.C.O. entry, last week by 13-12 after humbling Mt. Gilead 31-0 in its opener two weeks ago.

"Dads' Night" will be observed tonight at Harding stadium. Fathers of all players on the Irish squad will be seated in a block in the stadium and, during the half-time intermission, will be introduced. The Crestline High school band is scheduled to appear here tonight and will participate in the program.

Coach Fetter said today he planned to start the same lineup, with only one change, that battled Tiffin Calvert last week. Danny McGinnis, who started at quarterback in the Irish backfield, will be replaced by Jimmy Lawler.

While last week's game was played in a torrent of rain, the weatherman promised clear for tonight's tussle. New uniforms, costing nearly $700, were worn last week for the first time. Coach Fetter said today that all of these had been cleaned this week and are none the worst for the severe beating they withstood.

Four Irish first stringers suffered minor injuries in the inaugural game. They are Danny McGinnis, a sprained ankle; Paul Ring, a banged-up rib; Ed Simmons, a sprained ankle; and Dan MacDonald, a bruised hip. All will be ready for tonight's game and all will start except McGin-

Marion Harding, defending North Central Ohio league football champion, will turn loose its powerful Presidents against a less formidable Mt. Vernon Yellow Jacket eleven tonight at Mt. Vernon in the first league game for both teams.

A comparison of the two teams non-league record indicates a Harding victory by a wide margin. In dropping both of its first two games, Mt. Vernon scored only seven points to 62 for the opposition. A great Xenia O. S. & S. O., 1941 Ohio Class B champions, bowled over Mt. Vernon 31-0 in the opener, and Coshocton followed last week with a 31-7 triumph.

Harding trimmed Columbus West 18-6 in the Presidents' opener here last week. West had previously lost 33-0 to a high-scoring Newark powerhouse.

Battle Overconfidence

Battling against overconfidence within the team personnel, Coach Dorris gives the Harding gridders little time to regard tonight's game as a pushover. All during practices this week Coach Dorris has stressed fundamentals. One whole day was spent on defense and especially pass defense. Noticeably weak in the latter department in last week's opener, the Harding team has been drilled in a defense which Coach Dorris is keeping a secret until game time. While not taken as a committal as to what the defense might resemble, Coach Dorris said that the defense against passes was to rush the passer. Last week the West Cowboys tried 11 passes, completing six for 71 yards.

Tom Boyd, who played on the Harding reserve team two years ago after making a commendable record as junior high gridder, returned to Harding last week and

Centerfielder Terry Moore scored the second St. Louis Cardinal run in yesterday's second world series game in St. Louis in which the Cards defeated the New York Yankees 4 to 3. He is seen crossing the plate in the first inning. Moore came in on Walker Cooper's double, which also drove in Jimmy Brown. ## 64TH KENTUCKY TROT AT LEXINGTON TODAY

$4,135 National Stake Also on Harness Program.

By The Associated Press

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 2—The 64th renewal of the Kentucky, believed to be the oldest trotting event in America, and the $4,135 National stake for 2-year-old trotters featured today's card at the Lexington Grand Circuit meeting.

The Kentucky futurity for 2-year-old trotters, one of the meeting's highlights, was scheduled for today, but was postponed and the National stake was moved up from Oct. 7 to replace it.

The National stake, which was scheduled for earlier this year at Old Orchard Beach, Me., was transferred here by Grand Circuit officials. Heading entries for this event was Volo Song, leading juvenile. The Kentucky is for 3-year-olds and will be run in two divisions.

BROWN RATES OHIO, INDIANA EVEN IN BIG 10 INAUGURAL

Calls Sarringhaus, James Equal of Hoosiers' Hillenbrand.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 2—Have you been wondering, as we have, just how Ohio State's youthful Bucks will fare against Indiana's Hoosier hot-shots in Saturday's opening Big Ten grid game?

Well, pull up a chair while we interview Paul E. Brown, coach of the Ohioans—and perhaps he'll give us an idea.

Q.—Hello, Paul. What do you think of Saturday's game.

Brown—It looks like a darned tough one—maybe too tough. We'll do the best we can, and we hope to make it a whale of a contest.

Q.—Planning any changes in your line-up.

Brown—No, we'll start the same boys who were in threre against Fort Knox. Don Steinberg will be in there at left end, although Dante Lavelli and John White are ready to go. I figure Don earned the job by his showing last week, and we'll need his blocking and tackling this time.

Q.—I thought Lavelli was your first choice at left end.

Brown—Well, he is, and he may win the job back. But Lavelli, you know, hasn't had his Big Ten baptism yet, so we'll start Steinberg. He's a rugged, hard-playing chap. Not fancy, but a good type to have in there when the going's tough.

Q.—Just how tough are these Hoosiers.

Brown—They're plenty good. This is the first team Bo McMillin has had for which he has been able to team his kids for just one position. There was a time when his ace ball-carrier was shifted all over the back-

Barker Picks Minnesota To Defeat Iowa Naval Cade

Also Favors Hoosier Eleven Over Buckeyes; Sele Michigan Over Michigan State.

By HERB BARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 2 — Taking the weekly football blindfold test (a guy can't always be wrong)

Minnesota-Iowa Naval: Bernie Bierman's Naval Cadets took Northwestern's Wildcats apart last week in their first major test but Minnesota, apparently as tough and strong this year as for so many years, may be something else again. In any case, a flier on Minnesota.

Northwestern-Texas. Don't see how anybody can figure Northwestern is going to get any rest here. The Longhorns have scored more than 100 points in their first two games. They won't score 100 against Northwestern. Maybe they won't score at all. Still, the says Texas.

Harvard-Penn: There's over this one. There ought some football, too, especial Penn which gets the vote.

When contacted at his home in Mt. Vernon last night, Coach Thomas said two of his five varsity lettermen will not be available for tonight's game. They are Co-Captain Eddie Wright and Center William Lybarger. Wright suffered a knee injury and Lybarger a shin injury in Mt. Vernon's opener with Xenia O. S. & S. O. Two other Jacket stars, Backs Mike Arquilla and Lloyd Russell have been hampered by injuries, but will probably break in to the game, Coach Thomas said.

Because of the numerous injuries, Coach Thomas will probably be forced to shift End Jim Mentis to quarterback, in place of either Arquilla or Russell. If Mentis is shifted into the backfield, Ray Sapp will probably draw a wing assignment.

Line-Ups

Here are the probable starting line-ups:

| Harding | | Mt. Vernon |
|---|---|---|
| Williams (C) | LE | Williams |
| Kay | LT | Doup |
| Dixon | LG | Ca. Thomas |
| Hurst | C | Perfect |
| Price | RG | Cl. Thomas |
| Fazio | RT | Cosner |
| Benedict | RE | Sapp |
| Scott | QB | Mentis |
| Jenkins | LH | Kilroy |
| Young | RH | Perkins |
| Harvey | FB | B. Wright (C) |

Today's Guest Star—Bill Tobitt, Oakland, Calif., Tribune: "Those colleges who took the last vestige of tradition out of football by substituting steel goal posts for wooden ones can now revert to lumber... In that way two interests are served—the nation gets the steel and the customers on the winning side get splinters."

Shorts and Shells—Carrying out Mayor Fiorello (Butch) LaGuardia's orders to bear down on horse-race gambling, a few cops took over the office of a local racing wire service yesterday. When the customers began asking why the entries hadn't been sent on the wires, the only answer they got was ask "Butch"... The Detroit Tigers haven't signed any players to 1943 contracts yet, preferring to wait and see what will happen before spring. And the athletes were told to take their uniforms and equipment home with them.

immediately reported to Coach Dorris.

Boyd will probably not see action in tonight's game. He has been bothered by an old shoulder injury. Last year he was a first string guard on the Kentucky Military Institute, winning a varsity letter. He also won a varsity numeral in track.

Frank Fogg, who recently moved to Marion from Conneaut, is the only other recent addition to the Harding squad.

Practice Under Lights

Following last night's drill under the stadium lights, Coach Dorris indicated that he would start about the same team as nis. Halfback Don Moran, the only senior on the St. Mary squad, has been bothered by a cold this week, but will be in shape by game time.

ST. MARY

In practices this week Coach Fetter has emphasized a number of new offensive plays. Expecting Crestline to stage an aerial assault, the Irish mentor has also instructed his charges in pass defense.

Probable line-ups for the game follow:

| St. Mary | | Crestline |
|---|---|---|
| Winterstellar | LE | Beck |
| Werley | LT | Shealy |
| MacDonald | LG | Anatrax |
| Kelly | C | Remy |
| Wilmes | RG | Tesso |

| Baum | RE | Arter |
| Lawler | QB | Barilon |
| Moran | LH | Ganni |
| Tobin | RH | DeJean |
| Simmons | FB | Kershner |

SERVICES CHANGED

The time of services at St. Paul's Lutheran church on State Route No. 98 have been changed for the winter with Sunday school opening at 10:45 a. m. and church service at 11:30. Service time at Trinity Lutheran church south of Pleasant township school has been changed to 9:45 a. m. for Sunday school and 10:30 for church service. Rev. Edgar W. Schuh, pastor of both churches, will preach on "The Most Generous Master in the World" at each church service Sunday.

WHITE SOX DEFEAT CUBS 9-5 IN SERIES

Play Switches to Comiskey Park Tonight.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 2 — The Chicago Cubs are getting the same sort of treatment from the White Sox in the 1942 city series that they suffered last year — they're having difficulty winning.

Defeated in the first two daylight games, the Cubs left their home park to meet their South Side rivals in Comiskey park tonight in the third encounter of the four of seven series. Last year the Sox finished the series in four straight.

The Cubs held a one-run lead going into the seventh inning yesterday but the Sox got the equalizer, put over four runs in the eighth, and finished with a 9 to 5 win over the National league club.

BROWN

field, but he has plenty of talent this season, and he's making good use of it.

Q.—This Hillenbrand—can you stop him.

Brown—Frankly, I don't think Hillenbrand is the best back they have. I believe either Sarringhaus or James of Ohio is just as fast and valuable as Hillenbrand. We're worrying a lot about Cowan, the Indiana halfback who won the state sprint championship. He's a good 'un, and he can get up and go.

Q.—Your boys are pretty fast, too, aren't they.

Brown—Well, we've worked hard toward achieving the highest possible momentum this week. We're speedier than we were last year in several spots. But I don't believe we have anyone who can match Cowan in getting there in a hurry.

Q.—When will the Indiana team arrive here.

Brown—They're coming in late this evening, and will not work out here before the game. I guess they are working on some new stuff out home this afternoon, and don't want to give us a look at it.

Q.—You have some new stuff, too, haven't you.

Brown—Yeh, but we don't talk about that.

Q.—Who is going to win the ball game.

Brown—Well, it looks like a tough one. Fritz Mackey, who scouted Indiana against Butler, feels that we have an outside chance, but not a good one. The breaks will have a lot to do with it. We'll be outweighed a few pounds per man, but that won't make much difference. We've done everything we can to prepare for this one, and we'll not feel badly if we lose it. We'll do our best, and that's all anyone can do. But you can look for one whale of a game—I'll promise you that.

You and I—Thanks, Paul, and good luck!

Brown—We'll need it!

AIRPORT ALLOTMENTS

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2—The civil aeronautics authority has approved allotment of $4,428,000 for improvement of four Ohio airports, Senator Harold H. Burton (R-Ohio) announced. The allocations: Canton $2,000,000; Wilmington $800,000; Columbus, $660,000, and Zanesville $868,000. Details were not disclosed.

for Vanderbilt. Sheer guessing, Vanderbilt.

Pitt-Southern Methodist: Maybe Pitt isn't as bad as that 50-7 plastering from Minnesota would indicate. But they'll have to prove it. S. M. U.

Georgia Naval - North Carolina Naval: In which two pre-flight schools quit picking on the colleges. This vote goes to the Georgia Cadets.

Army-Lafayette: The Leopards scared the daylights out of Cornell last week and should be troublesome for untried Army. A hesitant ballot for the Cadets.

Holy Cross - Duquesne: Holy Cross was a disappointment against Dartmouth. Duquesne seldom disappoints—the Dukes have won 24 of their last 26 games, lost one and tied one. Duquesne.

Boston College - West Virginia: This looks like Bill Kern's best West Virginia team, but Boston College.

Michigan-Michigan State: Just a shot in the dark. Michigan.

Wisconsin-Marquette: Off last week's form, Wisconsin.

TUBERCULOSIS SEAL SALE FOR SOLDIER MAIL BEGUN

County League Secretary To Handle Advance Sale.

Anti-tuberculosis Christmas seals for packages to boys overseas may be purchased now, Mrs. W. E. Miley, executive secretary of the Marion Anti-Tuberculosis league, announced today. Persons who wish to buy them may call Mrs. Miley by telephone or may call at her home, 200 South Seiferd venue.

There will be no regular drive for sale of the seals this year, she said, so there will be no time limit for their sale. The regular mailing date for them will be Nov. 21, too late for soldier mail. Mrs. Miley attended a state meeting of Anti-Tuberculosis league secretaries in Columbus Wednesday where authorization of the sale of seals for overseas mail was made.

Caledonia Church To Burn Mortgage

Burning of a mortgage on the church will be featured at the evening service at 8, part of an all day rally program at the Caledonia Church of Christ Sunday, Rev. E. F. Hagelbarger of Mansfield will give an evangelistic sermon. In the morning Sunday school will be held at 9:30 with a worship service at 10:30. Rev. E. H. Sturtevant, pastor, will preach on "King of Kings."

Afternoon services will begin at 2:15 with Rev. C. W. Williams, state evangelist, and Rev. R. F. Strickler of the Kirkpatrick Church of Christ as guest speakers. A service flag bearing eight stars will be dedicated. Music for the day will be in charge of Miss Elizabeth Wiederkehr of Adrian, Mich. A basket dinner at 12:30 p. m. and supper at 6 will be served in the church basement.

BLACKOUT HIS UNDOING

By The Associated Press

FREMONT, O., Oct. 2—Running afoul a Fremont blackout, a carnival employe who wrecked a stolen truck was captured as he attempted to flee in an automobile he had taken in the darkness, police reported today. They said the truck, stolen from a carnival showing at Port Clinton, was smashed during last night's blackout. The driver called a wrecking company, then stole the automobile of Joseph Shanahan, who had been forced to stop when lights were extinguished. The carnival worker was apprehended at nearby Clyde, and he was held for investigation.

OHIO TAX REPORT

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2—The treasury reported today that 901,-875 Ohioans were among the 14,-778,159 Americans filing tax returns for 1940 and residents of the Buckeye state paid $82,652,-000 in tax on incomes of $2,259,-570,000. For the nation as a whole, there was a net income of $36,588,545,894 and a total tax liability of $1,486,403,388. These figures were increases of 57.8 per cent and 61.1 per cent, respectively, over the previous year.

Soybean Crop Estimates Hiked by Good Weather

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, Oct. 2—Favorable weather conditions raised Ohio's anticipated 1942 production of soybeans by 1,207,000 bushels, the Ohio cooperative crop reporting service said today.

The Ohio output estimated on Sept. 1 as 25,317,000 bushels will be about 28,524,000, or twice as much as in 1941 when 13,143,000 bushels were produced. The 1940 output was only 8,533,000 bushels.

Timely rains and ideal temperatures combined during early September to benefit soybean growing, the service said.

BEECH CHURCH SERVICE

Rev. Y. E. Nietz, district superintendent, will be in charge of the observance of Worldwide Communion at Salem Evangelical church at Beech Sunday at 10:30 a. m. Young people will have charge of the service at 8 p. m. # STEELS GIVEN BUYERS' NOD

Pick Up After Ragged Start; Rails Checked by Profit Taking.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 2 — Buyers turned to the steels in today's stock market while the recently speeding rails had to absorb profit taking before getting back on the upward track.

Prices, ragged at the start, improved when the metal issues began to come out in sizable volume with gains running to a point or so. Most corriers were ahead minor fractions at new highs for 1 to 5 years. Dealings were fast for a while, but subsequently slackened.

News of the war, anti-inflation bill and taxes still was cloudy but bullish sentiment persisted. There was the usual Friday trimming of accounts for the week-end although this was not too unsettling.

Favored stocks included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Crucible Steel, Youngstown Sheet, Chrysler, Douglas Aircraft, Du Pont and Johns-Manville. Edging to peak levels for 1942 or longer were Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Atlantic Coast Line, Union Pacific, Panhandle Producing, Paramount Pictures and Goodrich.

UNCERTAINTY HURTS WHEAT PRICES TODAY

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 2 — Wheat prices fell as much as a cent a bushel at one time today as a result of selling inspired by trade uncertainty as to the final wording of price control legislation being considered by a conference committee in congress.

The market rallied later, however, but displayed nervousness because traders were unwilling to take definite action until they knew what provisions the legislation would make for increasing government loan rates on basic crops. Meanwhile, with flour and milling trade quiet, there was little commercial activity in the market although some mill buying was reported on the rally.

There'll Be Enough Food

Nelson Tells Committee

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2—Donald M. Nelson told the house agriculture committee today that "there will be enough food to eat" during the war, and denied that he had ever said the farm problem was not a major one.

The war production chief, called by the committee in its investigation of the farm labor situation which members said threatened to result in an acute food shortage, told the committee the WPB was fully aware of the problems of agriculture and was doing everything possible to relieve them.

"When I say definitely there will be enough food to eat, that's a considered statement," Nelson said. "I believe it can be done. I think we are going to be smart enough and intelligent enough as a nation to meet the problem."

Schultz Pleads Innocent to Charge of Assault

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 2—Wilbur Earl Schultz, 60-year-old Richwood tailor, pleaded innocent today before U. S. Commissioner Robert Newlon to a charge of assaulting a federal officer with a deadly weapon. He was accused of firing three shots Wednesday at Veley Main, deputy U. S. marshal.

Main was fired upon at Schultz' Richwood shop as he served a warrant charging the tailor with failing to register under the selective service act. Schultz pleaded innocent to that charge yesterday and hearing was set for Oct. 7. No hearing has been set on the assault charge.

Ideas from Pearl Harbor

The medical corps of army and navy are beginning to find out whether the preparations which they have made for emergencies are of any practical value or not. As in any business or social project, a definite or plan may look very good on paper and even seem to be effective on maneuvers but in actual warfare may develop unforeseen defects which render it totally useless or, worse, contradictory.

Captain W. H. Michael, U.S.N., in a national magazine, takes pardonable pride in the fact that though the navy and army fighting units at Pearl Harbor failed to plan for a cooperation which would have been an effective defense, the non-fighting medical units of both army and navy were ready to go into action together when the emergency fell upon them.

Certainly every physician in the United States, especially the medical officers of the last war, will read with pride the record of efficiency and dispatch with which the wounded were handled on that fateful day.

Now for the medical lessons. The four cardinal problems which present themselves in the treatment of the wounded are: pain, hemorrhage, burns and shock. Later the problems of infection, especially infection with tetanus, and disability occur.

Pain was controlled at Pearl Harbor because a medical officer in the navy in 1938 resurrected the old Greeley unit, used in 1918, which is a handy morphine unit that can be injected without further preparation; a needle attached to a collapsible tube. Every medical, dental and hospital corpsman had these and used them freely. But the naval medico in 1938 had a hard time persuading the higher-ups to put Greeley units back into use. They said, "Why not an ordinary hypodermic?" And he replied, "Did you ever try to prepare a hypodermic under fire?" He won out, and this unit has been proved a success in actual warfare.

Hemorrhage was controlled first, of course, by stopping the bleeding, and its bad after effects were controlled by transfusions made possible by the fact that every man in service has his blood typed, and wears his type number on his identification tag.

Shock was controlled largely because pain and hemorrhage were controlled.

Burns were a major problem at Pearl Harbor, for they were very severe. The pushing of fluids and use of blood plasma for transfusions were found, as experience in civil practice has indicated, to be necessary for the immediate symptoms.

Infection, especially of burned areas, was kept at a minimum by sprinkling sulfanilamide powder on the burned area. "There has never been a group of war wounds so free of infection," states Captain Michael, although I believe they were very slow to heal.

The regular use of tetanus preventive proved completely successful. Tetanus, the nightmare of the medical officer, was non-existent, and even those who previously had said "Tetanus immunization is a cock-eyed idea" were relieved to know it had been done.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

All at a couple of railway stations and airports in search and the light of Captain Branch, with the arm around my husband's neck and her face apparently against his, it left a wave of feeling across me. But I managed to get to the phone in time to prevent him at once came to the rescue and I approached the table in the right mood.

"Where are you, Dicky?" I asked with amusement in my voice.

"I'll say I do," he said. "If you'll pull her affectionate, clinging arms from my neck, I can get a crumple cold on her throat, get back on the bed and tie her down, until Miss Whitlock gets here."

"Don't you touch me!" Carolyn cooed, dropping her arms from Dicky's neck and making a flying leap back to her chair. "Oh, how I hate both of you!"

Carolyn's Acting

"I didn't think I'd need to release you," I said smiling. "Her stage effects were good but the scene fell flat."

Dicky gave a low, expressive whistle.

"I hadn't thought of that angle," he said. "In my innocence, I believed the gal was trying to gain sympathy from a guy she sized up as a gullible male—the kind of fool she thinks she's simply irresistible, you know."

"She was trying to get your sympathy," I said, "but she was also trying something else."

"I get it—fully," Dicky said with a laugh. "She thought what you saw would send you into a jealous rage, of which she might take advantage."

Colossal Conceit

"Well, you've got to slip it to the gal. She'd be a natural to write those true confession things. Her only trouble is her colossal conceit. If she can ever realize that men aren't standing in rows, waiting to be cut down by her charm, somebody might be able to make a real woman of her. And to think that she is a child of the same parents as Ronald! I think her identification disk must have been switched at the hospital."

"Miss Whitlock ought to be here any second," I said quietly. I think Dicky caught the warning in my voice, for he stopped baiting the girl, and I speculated on a theory Dicky's last words had brought up.

I never had seen Helena Brixton's first husband, father of her two children, but I had heard from Lillian that he was so thorough-paced a scoundrel that Helena had been glad to give her children legally the name of Samuel Brixton, whom she married after her first husband deserted her and his infant children.

Possibly, I mused, Carolyn had inherited some traits of her father which missed Ronald altogether. Might not this be the key to her incomprehensible conduct?

Miss Whitlock's entrance cut short my speculations. She took one look at Carolyn, who had buried her face in her hands at Dicky's distaste, and spoke briskly.

"As I understand it, you don't want her blindfolded until after we get into the car?"

"That is right," I told her. "My father will tell you when he wants it done."

"You people are ready to go, I take it?"

"All ready," I said.

"And so are we," she told me. "I have Carolyn's hat, coat and overnight bag with me. Stand up, Carolyn, and I'll help you, with your hat and coat. Or would you prefer to put them on yourself?"

"Give them to me," Carolyn said hoarsely, reaching out her hands. "Don't any of you dare to put your hands on me."

The Stars Say—

For Saturday, Oct. 3

THE SIDEREAL conditions encourage and favor constructive programs in all walks of endeavor, with the promise of advancement, promotion, preferment and the expanded finances and credits needful to put over ambitious and cherished plans, hopes and wishes. It is a propitious time to push such efforts in business, personal, domestic, social and cultural channels with elders, friends and influential persons assisting. However there is need for keen vigilance against fraudulent entanglements, legal tangles or deception.

Those whose birthday it is should grasp the opportunity for expansion and growth, with increase of prestige, popularity, standing and financial credit—all contributing to inaugurating ambitious and constructive programs, which should meet success and promote fortunes and good will among associates in business, domestic, social and public or philanthropic affiliations. Nevertheless there is definite danger of loss, theft, legal entanglements, misrepresentation, probably through writings, agents and the like. Beware these and safeguard all possessions and interests as well as reputation.

A child born on this day will have lofty ambitions and aspirations for place and prestige, which it should attain. However, it may suffer fraud, loss and duplicity, with writings or documents jeopardized by cunning and trickery.
